Margaret in Victoria

Both Are Doing Well

LONDON (CP)—Princess Margaret gave birth to a son today and her husband said she was thrilled and delighted.

First to see the baby boy—after the doctors and nurses—was the father, the Earl of Snowdon, the former society photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones.

Coming from the royal maternity suite in Clarence House, he exclaimed to a member of the household:

"The princess and I are absolutely thrilled and delighted."

His son—fifth in line to the British throne — was born Viscount Linley.

The infant's weight was announced as six pounds, four ounces.

An official announcement said "mother and son are doing well."

"It's a sweet baby," said a member of the household.

The child was born in the room in Clarence House that Princess Margaret once used as a bedroom. She lived at the house, home of the Queen Mother, until her marriage in May, 1960. Both she and her husband are 31.

Crowds cheered outside Clarence House. The Scots Guards' bagpipe band marched past filling the air with highland music.

The news of the birth was relayed quickly to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip. Congratulations began pouring in.

Philip commented at Leeds in north England: "It's a great relief all 'round."

Lord Evans, 58, one of five medical men who attended the princess, told the father "It's a boy."

"Can I see her?" asked the husband, meaning Margaret.

"I think so," replied the doctor.

Tony went first to see Margaret. And then he tip-toed in to see his son.

He hurried to see the Queen Mother. With her, he revisited his wife and son.

Before the baby's birth—10.45 a.m. (2.45 PST)—Tony sent Margaret an armload of red roses. He repeated the order after the birth.

Bursting with the news, the Queen Mother got on the telephone to Buckingham Palace. To the Queen, she said:

"It's a boy, they're both doing well."

Within three hours the Queen was at Clarence House. The room in which the boy was born was the same in which Elizabeth gave birth to Princess Anne 11 years ago.

The news was flashed to the far corners of the world. It even went out to jet airliners in flight.

Trans World Airlines and British Overseas Airways Corporation spokesmen said their pilots in flight—everywhere—were asked to pass on the news.

The baby is known as Viscount Linley of Nymans, a town in the southern English county of Sussex.

The young lord was placed by nurse Anne Thomson in a wicker crib made in Dublin and sent by his paternal grandmother, the Countess of Rosse. She and the princess had guessed right. Hoping for a boy, they picked blue ribbons to trim the crib.

No official gun salutes heralded the birth of Margaret's son. Such salutes are reserved for children of the sovereign.

Courtesy Message to Macmillan

As a matter of courtesy Margaret's private secretary gave news of the birth to Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Home Secretary R. A. Butler and Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is spiritual head of the Church of England.

Although no formal pomp and ceremony accompanied the birth, the huge crowd outside Clarence House captured the spirit of most Britons—mixed relief and joy—when they let go with a wild cheer at news of the birth.

The day had started beautifully, with a Mediterranean blue sky, but began to cloud over about the time of the birth.

Margaret's boy is fifth in line of succession to the throne, behind Prince Charles; 13;

B.C. Hasn't Rejected Power Suit—Bonner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner says the government of British Columbia has not rejected B.C. Power Corporation's petition to sue the government over the price paid for the B.C. Electric Company.

"The fiat is under careful scrutiny and I will soon be in a position to make a report to the Executive Council," the attorney-general told a meeting of students at the University of British Columbia, on Thursday.

He said any decision will not be made known until after Premier Bennett returns from a two-week vacation.

The premier had indicated in a speech in the Okanagan a month ago that the fiat would not be granted.

But the attorney-general told the students that "there has been no decision or formal action yet on the part of the cabinet".

He asserted that the premier had merely said he considered the price paid a fair one.

B.C. Power is asking permission to seek a court award of $225,000,000 for the B.C. Electric. The corporation, which held all BCE's common shares, was paid just under $111,000,000 by the government when it expropriated BCE on August 1.

Mr. Bonner also defended the $38 which the government has offered for B.C. Power shares as a fair one — "the market

Cough Syrup Will Give Fallout Aid

LONDON (Reuters) — A British thyroid specialist today claimed that cough mixture will help protect people from radioactive iodine 131—a product of nuclear tests.

Phyllis George, consultant surgeon at the Royal Free Hospital here, told reporters: "A tablespoonful three times a day for five days will give you protection from iodine 131 for three months.

"The cough mixture must contain potassium iodide, of course, and the best way to protect people properly would be to give them potassium tablets before any fallout arrived."

Miss George, specialist in the hospital's thyroid clinic, made her claim at a time when government experts are working on plans to limit the possible dangers of iodine 131 when fallout from Russia's latest tests reaches Britain.

'GOOD LUCK TO HER'

Blessed Event Heralded Here

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

British Columbians joined today with millions in Canada and the Commonwealth in heartfelt good wishes to Princess Margaret and her husband.

All who remember the Princess' visit here during the Centennial year of 1958 responded warmly to the birth of her first son.

"Jolly good luck to her," said a city bus driver. "She's a darn nice girl."

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes crystallized these thoughts in a cable addressed to the Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon:

"All in British Columbia are delighted to hear of the birth of your son. May I extend hearty congratulations and best wishes to you and Viscount Snowdon."

Those of us who met the Princess at a private press reception in the Empress Hotel felt a personal thrill when the news flashed across the wires.

PLEASANT MEMORY

We recalled the sunny spontaneous greeting she had for each of us, and one particular incident glowed in our memories.

That was when Margaret took a cigarette from her handbag and a dozen lighters leapt to her service. The princess declined them all and waited while a Times reporter struggled with a little box of book matches.

He still keeps that match as a souvenir and another reporter is remembered for the classic remark:

"I feel I'd like to take her away from it all!"

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black cabled this message:

"The people of the government of British Columbia extend to you and Viscount Snowdon their heartiest congratulations on the birth of your first son."

Archbishop Harold Sexton wired congratulations on behalf of Anglicans throughout the province.

"All of us who had the privilege of knowing Princess Margaret will wish her well on this happy occasion," he said.

At the City Hall, Mayor Percy Scurrah said:

"On behalf of the citizens of Victoria I extend heartfelt congratulations to the Princess and her husband."

REAL CLIMAX

The Princess' arrival here on July 12, 1958, was the climax to a year of celebration marking British Columbia's 100th birthday.

Much had been heard about her—much had been written about her. And in person the Princess proved every bit as charming and vivacious as we had been led to expect.

She worshipped with 1,500 Victorians at Christ Church Cathedral, uttering the age-old responses from memory and listening with an air of

WHY RUSSIA IGNORES FALLOUT DANGER?

Anti-Radiation Drug Suspected

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Charles B. Limbrick, retired RCAF group captain and missile and radar expert, said today he believes the Soviet Union has perfected an anti-radiation drug which has been mass-administered to the Russian people.

He said that in such circumstances Russia can detonate many more nuclear bombs, lure the West into testing its own nuclear weapons and "can wait a long while for results."

Group Capt. Limbrick, former director of radio warfare in the RCAF, said in an interview that Western nations for some years have known that Russia was "on the track of a chemical pill or substance to offset most of radiation sickness effects."

"In my opinion," he added, "Russia now has a medical counter to radiation."

"Obviously, Russia is not worried about contamination," Group Capt. Limbrick said. "It had set off at least 30 nuclear bombs in the current series of tests.

Group Capt. Limbrick said he was told in Europe last year that the U.S.S.R. was "close to success" in its search for an antidote for radiation poisoning. He did not identify his informant but indicated his source was a Western official closely associated with biological research.

He said it was known five years ago that Russia was a "good deal" ahead of the West in the biological aspects of radiation sickness.

"Russia will not only let off many fallout-producing bombs, some very large, but also by the same action induce the United States, United Kingdom and France also to release fallout.

"The Russians can wait a long while for results."

Biologists at the atomic centre at Chalk River, Ont., more than two years ago, launched experiments with a drug which may help to protect man against atomic radiation.

Research with rats indicated that the drug — parathormone —provides protection when it is injected before exposure to radioactivity and to a lesser degree after irradiation.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission is investigating the possibility of giving people anti-strontium pills in the event of a nuclear attack.

Purdy to Step Down From BCE Post?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun says there are strong indications that former president Harry L. Purdy will leave the British Columbia Electric Co. within the next three days.

Dr. Gordon Shrum, head of the nationalized company, predicted some resignations in a speech in Victoria Thursday night.

Mr. Purdy was president of the Privately-owned BCE after the death of A. E. (Dal) Grauer. After the provincial government took over he reverted to vice-president and his salary was later cut to $35,000 from $60,000.

The Sun also says that Harold J. Merilees, long-time executive assistant to Mr. Grauer, and chief engineer Jack J. Steede are on their way out.

Power Rate Cuts April 1 For All B.C. Says Shrum

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislature Reporter

All British Columbians can expect a cut in electric light bills next April 1.

B.C. Electric president Dr. Gordon Shrum said Thursday this is the "logical date" for the reductions across the province promised by Premier Bennett.

Dr. Shrum told a Victoria Rotary Club luncheon the government's goal is to make B.C. rates on a par with those of Ontario Hydro.

Ontario's rates at present are about half those charged here.

But Dr. Shrum said B.C. couldn't match these rates immediately.

MEET IN MIDDLE

Ontario's rates are going up, he said; B.C.'s will go down; and they will meet somewhere in the middle.

(Ontario charges $4.11 for 300 kilowatt hours of electricity in Toronto; the price in Vancouver is $9.63. For 400 kilowatt hours Toronto pays $6.63 and Vancouver $11.53. Average Vancouver consumption at Dec. 31 was 336 kilowatt hours a month.)

Dr. Shrum—in what he called his first report to the B.C. Electric shareholders—also:

Disclosed that there will have to be more top-level resignations in B.C. Electric and that the first will come this week;

"We are top-heavy in senior staff."

Predicted that B.C. Electric and the B.C. Power Commission will merge in about five years;

Promised there would be few staff changes when B.C. Electric and B.C. Hydro exchange territory in Victoria and the north next Jan. 1.

Imperial to Buy B.C. Crude for Ioco Plant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Imperial Oil today became the first company to announce it will buy British Columbia crude from a pipeline that is being built from the Peace River.

The company said it will purchase 7,000 barrels daily from the $31,500,000 line that will extend from Taylor Flats, B.C., in the Peace River distirct to the Kamloops area where it will join the Trans-Mountain pipeline from Alberta.

The line is being built by Western Pacific Crude and Products Company which was formed by Westcoast Transmission Company.

Imperial now takes the bulk of its crude from the Trans-Mountain line and imports some from California. The Western Products line, 505 miles long, is expected to be completed in December.

Imperial said the company and its partners now are drilling 40 development wells in the Boundary Lake field north-east of Dawson Creek. Companies operating in the Peace were expected to bring production up to 240,000 barrels a day by early next year.

Her visit here was marked by brilliant sunshine and a merry round of pageantry and when she left the unanimous unspoken farewell was:

"Come again when you can."

. . . POWER RATE CUT

Dr. Shrum said the "small users" of electricity will benefit most by the rate cuts.

"When and how much is a matter we are studying," he said.

But April 1 would be the logical date, to coincide with annual budget of B.C. Electric, B.C. Power Commission and the provincial government.

ONE RATE

"What we're aiming for—and we may not be able to do it immediately—is one rate for the whole of B.C.," he said. At present northern customers pay a much higher rate than those in metropolitan areas.

"It may be a good idea even if it costs more," said Dr. Shrum.

"Don't expect every customer to get a $100 reduction," he added. "But it will be significant."

"Our objective is the maximum reduction to smaller users because industrial rates are not too far out of line in relation to most other places."

It "will not be easy" to come down as far as Ontario rates, he said, because B.C. Electric was faced with such budgeting problems as a losing bus service.

"We may have to wait until we get a large source of hydro-electric power. But Ontario Hydro rates are going up. If we sit still long enough we'll get down to Ontario Hydro rates."

Dr. Shrum said there already have been a number of resignations since the government took over B.C. Electric Aug. 1.

But they have all been at the top, and the real operating staff "who make a company go," such as supervisors and managers, has not been affected.

EXCHANGE

Next Jan. 1 B.C. Hydro takes over all B.C. Electric Greater Victoria operations. In exchange B.C. Electric gets northern and interior territory from B.C. Hydro.

Dr. Shrum said B.C. Electric will be able to absorb at present salaries all B.C. Power Commission staff involved in Vancouver.

"Practically the same thing will be done over here," he said. Staff in Victoria need not worry about their jobs.

Meanwhile, both companies have ordered a complete staff "freeze." No new staff will be hired until after the realignment of territory.

value on an open exchange—what a willing buyer and a willing seller would arrive at".

This was a precedent often followed, he said, particularly in Great Britain, where it was upheld by the House of Lords in the 1940's.

"Our basis was an application of a principle that will stand the test of time," he said.

Questioners tried to pin down the attorney-general on a statement he made in 1960 that the take-over of BCE would be "an irresponsible act".

"Taking it over simply for the sake of taking it over would be irresponsible," he said. "But today we have a different set of circumstances. Under the present set-up we stood to lose about $12,000,00 a year to the federal government in taxes."

Smaller Nations Win, Lose

'End Tests' Vote Approved in UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The smaller countries of the United Nations swarmed over the big ones Thursday night in giving overwhelming approval to a call for a voluntary, unpoliced moratorium on testing of nuclear weapons.

Despite the successful attack, the small powers did not win. For different stated reasons, the great powers had turned down the plea in advance.

The UN political committee voted 72 to 21 with eight abstentions for the voluntary cessation of testing, overcoming the objections of the Soviet Union, the United States and Britain.

Canada supported the resolution initiated by India and fi : other non-aligned states. It appeared certain to get the two-thirds majority needed in the 103-country General Assembly.

France and Australia were among the countries opposed.

Russia and the Western nuclear powers—from their separate camps — indicated they would endorse nuclear testing if they considered them necessary for their own safety and that of the smaller powers.

UNFEASIBLE

Russia called the moratorium unfeasible unless it was made part of an over-all disarmament agreement.

Russia said that it resumed its nuclear testing because the West was threatening war over Berlin.

The U.S. and British representatives heatedly denied this and said that they could no longer trust the Russians on a voluntary moratorium because they had violated a three-year ban by starting their series of tests Aug. 31 while negotiations on a treaty were in progress in Geneva.

Despite the prior rejection by the nuclear powers, India urged the committee to make another appeal to them to call off further tests.

The political committee turns today to a U.S.-British resolution urging new negotiations on a test ban treaty under effective international controls but no vote is expected until next week. Canada also supports the resolution.

SASK. CCF HONORS RETIRING PREMIER

Follow Douglas, Coldwell Urges

By SCOTT SCHILL

REGINA (CP) — Tommy Douglas said goodby to his CCF supporters in Saskatchewan Thursday night. The party elects a new leader today.

The party gave Mr. Douglas, elected New Democratic Party national leader two months ago, a new car Thursday night in appreciation for the job he has done in 17 years as premier.

About 750 people clapped, cheered and sang songs for Mr. Douglas at a banquet on the second day of the 26th annual Co-operative Commonwealth Federation Saskatchewan section conference. It is also the first annual NPD conference.

Mr. Douglas, visibly moved, said: "I go with your faith, your loyalty and your trust. Our greatest days lie ahead of us, not behind us."

"We both have respect for each other despite any mistakes I may have made; I could not have done the job I did without your support.

"I have never betrayed you, never let you down and never knowingly departed from the programs you have laid out."

Mr. Douglas spoke only briefly. The guest speaker was M. J. Coldwell, former national leader of the CCF and one of the founders of the CCF movement.

REVIEWS PARTY GROWTH

Mr. Coldwell spoke of the last 17 years in Saskatchewan of Premier Douglas' government and the future of Mr. Douglas and the New Democratic Party. "The foundation has been laid now, the superstructure has to be built," he added.

"You have a good leader to show the way."

"This is the only government that has come to power in North America that has brought with it sound social and economic policy."

Mr. Coldwell said the NDP should "build Canada to a powerful nation, not in arms, but in leadership and aid to other countries, and co-operate to give the best of skill and resources to needy countries to combat poverty, want and social injustices".

"You can follow Tommy Douglas," he said.

Will We Drift or March?

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT cannot have been caught by surprise by the historic report delivered in Washington this week which could prepare the way for United States participation in a transatlantic partnership with the European Common Market. Mr. Kennedy has been advising Ottawa in this vein for the past several months and urging the expediency of Canada's joining in the move.

The latest report, prepared by Christian Herter and William Clayton and fully described in The Times yesterday, is a bipartisan document that already has Mr. Kennedy's approval in principle and which could be the preliminary step in a whole new era of world trade.

This is the same concept that has been urged by Mr. Lester Pearson for the past two years. The present Washington development is a magnificent vindication of the Liberal leader's views.

This could be the first step in a free-world association of trading nations that is seen in some quarters as the only sure long-term method of combating world communism.

But Canada is in serious danger in this matter. For Prime Minister Diefenbaker has completely failed to assess the new movement. He has opposed such a development from the time when Britain proposed a free-trade arrangement with this country. He has opposed Britain's entry into the European Common Market, and he has opposed any Canadian participation in a north-Atlantic trade association.

He is thus in opposition to Britain, to the United States, to free Europe and to the whole trend of free-world trading policies.

The warnings directed to the United States in the Herter report could well be applied to Canada.

The report, speaking of United States policy heretofore, says the U.S. "takes too frequent refuge in protectionist devices. But even if this country stood still it would be drifting backwards because it would not be keeping pace with Europe's determined move forward."

In opposing the free-trade market concept, Mr. Diefenbaker has misconstrued the real situation and adopted a purely negative attitude of resisting any change in the Atlantic trade pattern.

He tried to bully Britain out of joining the European Common Market, when he sent two ministers to the conference at Accra with pleas and threats. As the United States now considers a move toward the transatlantic trade ideal, the Canadian government's policy is revealed as a complete misconception and a sterile, dead-end hope.

What will Mr. Diefenbaker now do, in the face of this new situation? Will he continue to wring his hands and castigate Britain—adding the United States to the list? Or will he admit the total error of his policy so far and try to meet the new challenge by joining Britain, the United States and Europe in pumping new blood into the economic arteries of the free world?

This is no mere quibble about increasing trade a little bit here or there or directing current import or export business from one country to another. It involves a whole new approach to international trade—an approach which has already been made by six countries of western Europe, is now being made by Britain, Norway, Sweden and other nations, and is up for full discussion in the United States as a real and probable policy.

It is real and probable, not only because it promises wider trade and greater prosperity for the participants, but because it is being seen as perhaps the only sure way to combat the burgeoning economic strength of the Communist world.

With the shock tactics of his nuclear testing program, Mr. Khrushchev has achieved a major blunder. He has so horrified the free world with the ruthlessness of his production of lethal fallout that he has shaken the West into a realization that it must recreate its unity and rally its strength. Mr. Khrushchev has demonstrated to the Western nations that they must stop squabbling and get down to business on the economic as well as the military front. This consideration, after all, was embodied in the original NATO agreement but largely ignored, despite the urging of Mr. Pearson and other world statesmen.

Now Russia has stupidly created a climate of apprehension in which a miracle of economic co-operation may become possible for the first time. Will Canada be part of the new movement? Or will we continue to drift backward as Europe determinedly moves forward?

Mr. Diefenbaker might keep in mind as he reconsiders his policy, that the longer we lag the harder it will be to catch up.

Dr. Shrum's Address

DR. GORDON SHRUM brought good news to this city Thursday when — reversing his stand of six weeks ago — he said that electricity consumers could expect "significant" reductions in rates by April 1 of 1962.

In his original response to a question on rate cuts, Dr. Shrum had said "Don't count on it . . . this will take time." Earlier this fall he amended his position to say that it all depended on the economic graph, and that if conditions improved sufficiently the reductions might be expected by 1963. In the face of mounting protests by press and public, he has now advanced his schedule by a year.

There was good news, too, for Victoria employees of the B.C. Electric. While some positions were "redundant," Dr. Shrum noted, they would be taken care of in the normal ebb and flow of retirements and no serious dislocations would result from the change-over.

All in all, Dr. Shrum's address —the first he has made since he became head of the company—was notable more for what it did not say than what it did. While sketching an impressive picture of the Peace River development, no mention was made of markets and no attempt made to answer the crucial question: who will buy the power? How will the public of B.C. pay for this gigantic expenditure, which Dr. Shrum forecast at $882 millions in the next 19 years?

The whole Columbia potential, which many experts regard as the cheapest source of power in North America, was dismissed with one colored slide and a few sentences.

There was another aspect of Dr. Shrum's address of direct concern to this newspaper, whose integrity was impugned by the speaker in a most reckless way.

Commenting on the report of a Montreal engineering firm to Justice Minister Davie Fulton, Dr. Shrum said that the news of its estimate had been printed in "The Sun, The Province and The Colonist of July 25—you can look it up."

"The Times was very clever," he continued. "They did not print the report. The estimates did not show what they wanted to believe."

Public men who use the luncheon forum to recall statements of what was, and what was not, printed in a newspaper—any newspaper—are on shaky ground. They may get away with such references in regard to radio and television, whose messages are fleeting (unless taped). But in print media the statements are simple matters of record and may be checked in the files.

So, following on Dr. Shrum's advice, The Times "looked it up." It found that a full Canadian Press report on the Montreal engineering report to the Hon. Davie Fulton was printed on page one, on July 25. The Colonist could not possibly have printed the report on that date, since the news emanated from a press conference held by Mr. Fulton on the morning of July 25.

However, the Colonist printed a complete report of the July 25 press conference on July 26, corroborating in every detail the account carried by The Canadian Press and published in The Times. Furthermore, it carried alongside the original story a statement by Dr. Shrum himself in which he said that he was not in a position to dispute Mr. Fulton's figures.

Look it up, Dr. Shrum.

Food for Parental Thought

REPORTS ON THE MEETING held by Saanich police with parents and children involved in the Gordon Head Halloween trouble are disquieting because the children, or showoffs among them, received the police warnings with childish arrogance.

Chief Bert Pearson and Juvenile Officer Harry Adams, from experience, know the course that leads to jail frequently starts with juvenile misdemeanors. Parents might give that point some thought. It is not a boyish prank to assault a police officer. It is a criminal act.

'A Plague on ALL Your Houses'

RENDER UNTO CAESAR . . .

By B. A. TOBIN

What You Don't Know . . .

TWO rather startling statements have come out of the current little furore over censorship of Mr. Henry Miller's book, "Tropic of Cancer," and both are by officialdom. One is startling in its naivety and the other defies cataloguing. It can only be put down to red tapery in its reddest form. It is an official of the revenue department who is on record with the remark that law-abiding citizens are expected to turn in to the authorities any copies of Miller's book which they have in their possession, even though these copies were obtained legally and with the tacit approval of the revenue department itself.

Tobin

That is a refreshing attitude in these cynical times. Not that evasion of the law is an outstanding characteristic of people who possess books, but it seems to demand a standard of conduct which, admirable though it might be, is entirely unrealistic.

In the first place, while you might prove to a librarian, university professor, student of literature or average interested reader of books that he was breaking a law by hanging on to the Miller volume, you would have a hard time to convince him that he was doing wrong. He might even argue very strongly that by defying—even in the secrecy of his carrel or study — the edict of the revenooers, he was keeping alight the flickering flame of intellectual freedom which has in its time lighted the path of liberty for much more important writings.

Few such persons would make a point of keeping in their possession a horror comic or sex-ridden "health" magazine — although in relinquishing even it they might have twinges of Magna Carta and all that.

They would be more likely to burn the trash themselves, and wash their hands afterwards. But the output of a Miller is a different thing, for along with the frank approach to sex and the Anglo-Saxon terminology—known to all but the most unworldly of grade school youngsters but not, apparently, to the revenue department—there may be the gist of an intelligent thought. And no one will argue that the world is so full of intelligent thoughts that we cannot make room for one more, even couched in—to some—dismaying terms.

Walk, Don't Run

It will be interesting to see how many law-abiding citizens voluntarily turn in their copies of Miller. I imagine they could be counted on the fingers of one thumb.

But the customs men seem to have brought at least part of their problem upon themselves. For appended to a news item about the Toronto Public Library's four copies of Cancer, and the question of taking them out of circulation, was a most remarkable sentence which opens up a whole new field of speculation.

The sentence reads: "The revenue department has a list of books not allowed into Canada, but the list is not released to librarians."

A sentence like that leaves very little to be said, really. Apart from not being allowed the books, are librarians and other law-abiding citziens not even allowed to know what other books are not legal? Is this because the knowledge might lead them to try to get copies of the books to see why they are banned? Or is it merely a game the customs men play, making the law-abiding citizen break the law unwittingly, and then catching him at it?

There are books you must not possess, but you are not allowed to know what books they may be.

This should set every law-abiding citizen to gazing hungrily at his five-foot shelf, wondering if among his collection there are any illegal books, and hoping he won't have to read the whole five feet of volumes to find them.

Unknown Isles

(The Vancouver Sun)

THEY are the unknown islands. They are potentially one of the largest and most spectacular marine playgrounds in the world.

They are lonely, neglected, rarely visited, unexploited.

The unknown islands are the intricate complex that closes the northern end of the Strait of Georgia above a line drawn between Powell River and Campbell River. Their natural beauty is such that it literally beggars description. The stupendous gorge of Jervis Inlet is a mere anteroom to the vast chasms of such places as Toba or Bute Inlets.

Superlatives are useless. We use them for Garibaldi or the Gulf Islands. The panorama from, say, the junction of Lewis Channel with the Strait of Georgia is as if a hundred Garidaldis had been set along the mainland shore and twenty times the Gulf Islands spread out before them.

The mystery is that so few of Vancouver's people have ever seen the islands. One factor undoubtedly is transportation. To reach even the southernmost islands it is necessary for the traveller without his own boat to cross the strait to Nanaimo, drive 100 miles to Campbell River and cross again by ferry to Quadra Island. And there he is marooned.

By Powell River and Lund, the distance could be halved.

Access can be made easy and fast at small cost. Improvement of the road to Lund, provision of a ferry operating, say, between Lund, via the Redondas, Cortez and Quadra Islands to Campbell River, would be a practical method of placing the southern fringe of this vast playground within eight hours or less of Vancouver.

For small boats, natural harbors abound.

Something Big and True

By PAUL JENNINGS

JAMES THURBER had no more passionate admirers than his English ones, possibly because that specifically American wryness did not produce in America quite the same shock of delighted surprise as it did here in the thirties and forties. Some people, of course, had read writers like Mark Twain; but Thurber somehow gave us a sense of revelation. Here it was, a new kind of wit in a perfected literary form.

Many people, if they thought of the man in those early days, must have envisaged someone vaguely unathletic, permanently middle-aged, endomorphic, something between Walter Mitty and the strange boneless men, apprehensively staring mouths glumly turned down, of his drawings. (Thurber relates in his book on Ross how E. B. White, catching him in an attempt to make his drawings look more three-dimensional, said: "Don't do that. If you ever got good you'd be mediocre.")

But when, later, we saw Thurber on his frequent post-war visits to England, we found someone very different: neat but restless, slim, upright, elderly, an ectomorph. Above all, Thurber was a precisian. He was always restlessly building neat walls against Old Chaos.

His humor was the first that could be regarded as a genuine literary product of an age in which the ordinary man, heir to centuries of peasant and family life, suddenly (for art telescopes these processes) is up against the fragmentation, complexity and directionless menace of industrial civilization.

Too Worried

The menace is clearer now, not to be met with the delicate indirectness of humor. Lesser people can turn this into a formula, saying: "Look at me, I'm the Little Man against civilization." But Thurber was far too worried and driven by it to have time to stop and make that kind of formulation.

He was Committed in a very much deeper sense than that commonly denoted by the word. He was committed to Man, and his enemy was a kind of shifting monster of Inaccuracy—whether the moral inaccuracy of scientific lunacy, the inaccuracy of people's knowledge about each other, or the inaccuracy of the misremembered quotation (he had total recall and never forgot anything.)

The last time I met him, at the Stafford Hotel in London, he was wondering whether Alfred North Whitehead could have been any good at all because of a misquotation he had made.

Another frequent form of the enemy was inaccuracy in English construction, about which there are some splendid explosions in "Lanterns and Lances," his last book ("a woman came chattering into my dreams saying, 'We can sleep 20 people in this house in a pinch, but we can only eat 12'."). It is not surprising that his great literary hero was Henry James.

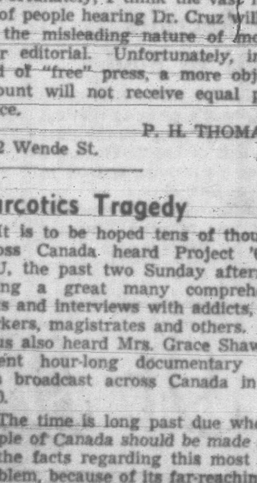
Thurber's style took some time forming. He was born in 1894, and after Ohio State University he had several years in journalism. On the Columbus Dispatch he found news stories in citizens like the one who received a radio program on the steel rims of his spectacles.

In France, after unsuccessful attempts at a novel, he was assistant editor of the Riviera edition of the Chicago Tribune. By 1926 he was back in America, on the New York Evening Post. After many rejections he then got a piece into the New Yorker, written in a 45-minute period for which his wife had set the alarm clock, saying he spent too much time on his articles.

Only Joy

Words were things to Thurber, and this became more and more evident as blindness descended on him during the last quarter of his life. He could see the whole thing hanging up there in his mind, he just went on restlessly choosing the words. Perfectly-fashioned pieces came out, showing an innocent dreamland, where there was no confusion or inaccuracy, only joy.

He sought and gave joy in the theatre, too (although, as he once said to me, "I'm not long on plot, you know").



THURBER

We must always regret the collapse of the London plans for the stage version of "The Thurber Carnival," in which he appeared personally with great success.

It is hard to think he is gone; even though the climate of his work grows larger and more inviting all the time. He created a genre and was a giant in it. In a century's time, critics may acknowledge Walter Mitty as a basic twentieth-century figure. If Faust is pure intellect and Don Juan is pure sense, Mitty is pure fantasy. There is something else wonderfully new, big and true forever associated with the name of Columbus.

As Our Readers See It

They, Too, Are Remembered

The sale of poppies by the Legion reminds us that the 43rd anniversary of Armistice (now Remembrance) Day will be soon here. On November 11 and at 11 a.m. on that day we shall honor the dead who paid the supreme sacrifice in three wars.

We have special thoughts too for their loved ones who lost them, and also for the veterans with broken health, the result of war service, whom the poppy funds help, supplementing the government's provision paid to them. But most of all we should think of (remember the year round) those who paid and are paying the supremest sacrifice —men and some women struck down in war who were so badly injured that they have had to lie in DVA hospitals for the rest of their lives and so, denied home life and normal living and all that that means for their relatives too.

They are the living dead and should have national recognition and be included in our tributes at the Cenotaphs and church services. Equally we should look on them and help them to realize that we see them not only as wounded veterans but also as fellow citizens who have their part in our communities just as we have—sharing in the responsibilities. I know of some of them and there must be many others I do not know who are heroes and give vital service to their fellow sufferers and the community.

Defends Dr. Cruz

I do not think your editorial (Saturday, Oct. 28) about the Cuban ambassador was fair.

The first paragraph contains a personal attack on Dr. Cruz, which is I think unnecessary and misleading.

The third paragraph says Dr. Cruz replied "lamely" to the charge that Cuba voted with the U.S.S.R. on the fallout issue at the UN. While I certainly do not agree with the Soviet position, it should be made clear that Dr. Cruz' "lame" reply is one quite in keeping with the usual terminology of diplomacy.

In the fourth paragraph you say Dr. Cruz was "evasive and then aggressive" on the question of "persecution" of Roman Catholics. Again the public should realize that to an objective observer there was little "evasive" in Dr. Cruz' reply. Certainly his attitude was very firm, and anyone with some objective knowledge of the Cuban situation will see its similarity to the Latin-American revolts of the 19th century, when it was indeed found necessary to place limitations on an institution which was allied with the old systems of exploitation of the people. Dr. Cruz pointed out that he and his wife are Roman Catholics, and his daughter attends a Roman Catholic school in Ottawa.

In regard to your fifth paragraph, surely Dr. Cruz could not drive a wedge between Canada and the U.S. But the U.S. itself has been creating that wedge by its own non-objective and hysterical attitude to Cuba. Of course, if an objective view and understanding of the Cuban revolution alienates the U.S., then surely Cuba and Dr. Cruz are not responsible.

Finally you mention strangulation of the "free" press. I had thought Cuba had been a Batista dictatorship. Do you suggest a "free" press exists under a dictatorship?

Fortunately, I think the vast majority of people hearing Dr. Cruz will realize the misleading nature of most of your editorial. Unfortunately, in this land of "free" press, a more objective account will not receive equal prominence.

Narcotics Tragedy

It is to be hoped tens of thousands across Canada heard Project '62 on CBU, the past two Sunday afternoons, giving a great many comprehensive facts and interviews with addicts, social workers, magistrates and others. Some of us also heard Mrs. Grace Shaw's excellent hour-long documentary which was broadcast across Canada in June 1960.

The time is long past due when the people of Canada should be made aware of the facts regarding this most tragic problem, because of its far-reaching cost in human suffering, and in money.

It is estimated there are between 1,200-2,000 known addicts here in Vancouver. A larger number than the City of New York, with its population of 8,000,000, and in Toronto and Montreal there are many more addicts.

In Britain, however, with its population of 45,000,000, there were, according to the Sunday Times in March, only 450 registered addicts.

What then, is the basic reason for the colossal number here? It is the profit motive. In Britain, addicts—mostly doctors and nurses—are registered with the National Health Service, receive their drugs, and are treated—free of course—by doctors of the service.

The cost to the Canadian people to keep criminal addicts in prison, court and jail costs amount to well over a hundred million dollars annually. This is colossal waste of human lives and money.

I urge your readers to write their MP and ask him to demand that trafficking be made punishable by life imprisonment.

A Little Insurance

It is with interest we learn that once again our city council may have erred —this time to the tune of a possible bill of $150,000 to taxpayers.

In view of the remarkable consistency with which our city fathers manage to plunge us into these occasional messes, the question arises in my mind as to whether it might not be wise for the city council to take out an "Errors and Omissions" policy of insurance such as is the established practice on the part of professional people who are entrusted with the handling of their fellow citizens' personal affairs!

Undoubtedly, in view of the past history of this city, the question of insurability of those in authority would certainly arise; however, as Lloyd's of London have so often said, "we will insure anything."

ON THE TIMES By ART STOTT

The Bone House Is Gone

FOLKS out our way are curious about the details of plans for the park development of the old Chinese Cemetery. Some of them expect a pretty elaborate attraction, though they don't know what's in prospect.

Stott

About all they know is that the old Bone House is gone.

Architecturally, the razing of the old Bone House is no loss. It was a rectangular, common brick box of a structure infrequently painted black but weathered usually to a grey drab. At one time it had a gate for a door. You could peer through the iron bars of the gate and see crates of bones stacked for shipment to China. Periodically they would be put aboard a vessel and taken to rest in the soil of their fathers.

* * *

One Halloween a basket bomb exploded in the old Bone House and a sort of posthumous mingling of ancestors resulted. After that a metal door was installed, close-fitting so that even a fire-cracker couldn't get in. At that time of less sensitive reactions, there was no talk of desecration.

So the old Bone House stood for years, a source of morbid interest for some of us irreverent youngsters in the locality. It wasn't much of a landmark and was dwarfed in size and importance by the old Smith house close by—the house so many people tried unsuccessfully to label "haunted." "Haunted," they may have thought it, but to my certain knowledge not by any unquiet dead. For me and some of my age, it held the memories of a young First World War generation, which danced in its ballroom before sailing overseas. The inhabitants were always flesh and blood.

The Bone House was something else again. An imaginative boy could invite nightmares from it. This was the temporary repository of the dead.

As kids we used to invade the cemetery—improperly, I realize now—when the remains were being taken from their graves. The relics would be stretched out beside the excavation and then put in boxes to be stored in the Bone House.

A boy had to be pretty phlegmatic to watch the "dig" and not be pursued by skeletons in his dreams that night.

It became a local test of juvenile courage to walk alone around the Bone House in the dark. We all did it but we weren't comfortable.

In daytime it was another matter. Wild violets grew in the soil behind the house in the spring and in the summer wild strawberries ripened. In sunshine there was nothing particularly eerie about a brick building close by.

Behind it, too, many a young Foul Bay kid tried his first cigarette. It was the custom of relatives to visit the graves and place by the headboards token offerings to the respected deceased.

On most Sundays some family would arrive to honor the departed, leaving behind a small earthern cup of some Chinese beverage, a few rice cakes and a few Players. Once in a while they'd leave Millbanks, but Players were more popular.

When they had gone, the beach kids would sneak into the cemetery and gather the cigarettes. Furtively they'd make their way behind the Bone House and light up. I'd say more kids in our locality suffered dizziness and nausea from their introduction to nicotine behind the Bone House than in any other part of the district.

* * *

The ceremonials of the old Chinese Cemetery are in the past now. No longer do the elaborate "Feed the Deads" take place before the cement altar. No longer are the "devil papers" burned in their traditional incinerators. And two generations at least have grown up since the bereaved families and tongs left whole roasted pigs there—to be picked up at night by Indians coming by dugout from Discovery Island.

Old Charlie, the excitable but compassionate gatekeeper, has gone where good gatekeepers go, and we who were very young then, irreverent and inconsiderate, have been forgiven our trespasses.

Now, we in the district are told, we're to have a park there. I'm pretty curious about it too, hoping it will be a fitting memorial not only to the dead, but to the gentle people who came to tend the temporary graves.

LONDON LETTER By WALLACE REYBURN

University Picture Improves

LONDON—Britain, with a mere 107,000 undergraduates, has far fewer university students than Canada. But this unhappy picture, in which only one per 500 of population is at university, is being remedied—gradually.

Reyburn

A new one has just been added to Britain's 29 universities. It's at Brighton—housed in temporary premises for the moment — and the University of Sussex, as it's called, is one of seven that will come into being in the next few years to accommodate some of the flood of new students.

In the next 10 years an additional 63,000 are expected to be seeking university education and these seven new universities will go part way in meeting the demand.

Besides Brighton, these others are to become university towns: Norwich, York Canterbury, Colchester and Coventry.

* * *

In Britain, universities don't come under the control of the ministry of education. Grants they receive come directly from the treasury. And it is on recommendation from the University Grants Committee to the Chancellor of the Exchequer that a locality gets itself a university or doesn't.

With six of the new university sites allocated, there's rivalry for the seventh.

In the running to get the nod to go ahead and build a university: Bournemouth, Chester, Plymouth, Swindon, Stamford (Lincolnshire) and Lancaster.

Next on the list for Sir Laurence Olivier: His new movie will be Term of Trial, in which he plays a school teacher grappling with a batch of youngsters in a tough locality.

The film will be made in the Ardmore Studios, over in Dublin, which is getting to be a popular place for British companies to make pictures, for tax reasons. He'll have Simone (Room at the Top) Signoret as his co-star.

Easing of the bank rate to 6 per cent has prompted the Daily Express to produce an interesting chart showing how borrowing money here compares to the rest of Europe.

Switzerland is the friendliest with a 2 per cent bank rate, followed by West Germany, 3 per cent. At 3½ per cent: France, Holland and Italy. Then Sweden: 5.

Denmark has a 6½ per cent rate—and the only one higher is Iceland, where they make things awfully difficult at 9 per cent.

HOME GARDEN By HILDA BEASTALL

Don't Forget Lowly Wallflower

At this time of year when we are busily putting in new plantings of fruit trees, roses and the larger things, we are liable to overlook the lowly wallflowers and cabbages.

Hilda

These were planted in September and October but they require attention at odd times during the winter to ensure success later.

Failure of wallflowers to produce large spikes of flowers over a long period in the spring months is often due to the plants becoming loosened in the soil either by wind or by frost.

Few districts will admit to frost yet but we've all had winds, and I find the wallflower plantsh have open spaces in the soil around their stems. Each plants have open spaces in the into the soil, drawing up a little more to fill the gap around the stem.

This may seem a tedious job, but when the plants develop well and are covered with their hauntingly fragrant blooms in spring I'm sure you will not regret the time spent on them.

For those gardeners who are wondering why the cabbages are so often grouped with wallflowers when giving cultural information, it should be explained briefly that they both belong to the Crucifer family and have identical requirements as to kind of soil and firmness of planting.

If cabbages (also other members such as brussels sprouts, cauliflower and broccoli) become lose in the soil they will not develop firm heads, or large plants, according to their kind.

While other factors certainly contribute to success with these crops, a firm soil is a prime necessity.

WHITHER GHANA?

Courts U.S. Aid Flirts With Reds

By DENNIS NEELD

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—After four years of independence, Ghana today is a virtual dictatorship, often flirting with the Communist camp.

President Kwame Nkrumah likes to be known as Osagyefo (the redeemer). His picture is everywhere. He uses parliament to rubber stamp his decrees. The threat of arbitrary arrest hangs over all who speak out against him. Eavesdropping informers have made a nervous glance over the shoulder almost a national characteristic.

Nearly 400 political prisoners are in jails. "They will never see the sun," said a minister privately recently.

New legislation will set up special courts that can hang a man for "offences against the state." There will be no appeal against the courts' decisions.

STREETS THRONGED

Surf boats bring in tons of freight from ships moored off Accra docks. City streets are thronged with traffic. Statistics tell a less prosperous story.

Lavish government spending on prestige projects, loans to neighboring Guinea and Mali, and lower prices for cocoa — the main export earner—have combined to cut foreign exchange reserves to the equivalent of $280,000,000 against $560,000,000 in 1957.

Many qualified observers believe if there were a national election tomorrow, Nkrumah would be bundled out of office. He has no intention of calling an election, and the opposition has no prospect of toppling him from power by constitutional means.

In this political atmosphere the Queen will begin a royal tour here two weeks hence.

Against this background President Kennedy's team of experts, headed by Clarence Randall, must decide whether to recommend that the United States go ahead with the financing of Ghana's Volta Dam project.

MAY TURN TO REDS

If the U.S. fails to put up money for the Volta, Ghana may turn to Russia for help and may finally swing into the Soviet camp.

Already, Nkrumah's regime has trapping barely distinguishable from those of communism.

The government is recognized as agent of the ruling Convention People's Party. Nkrumah heads both. By direct and indirect means everyone is induced to join the party.

A worker must hold a trade union card. To get a card he must belong to the CPP.

Ghana is a long way from being a socialist state. Before th— can be achieved, Nkrumah asserts, the country must be completely industrialized.

Ghana's economy still is closely tied in with the West's, and investment is principally British.

Doubt that Nkrumah will go over to the Communists by choice is expressed among some diplomats here.

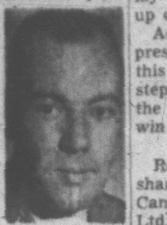
B.C. Power Enhances Chances To Get Better Share Terms

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

There is a strong feeling among investment men that B.C. Power Corp., by raising the issue of convertibility of $40 million in B.C. Electric Series B debentures into B.C. Power common shares has greatly enhanced its prospects for obtaining better terms from the B.C. government than the $38 a share offered.



Bell

The only way the government could head off B.C. Power from getting into the courts with this aspect of the takeover would be to call the debentures immediately and it is doubtful if the required $42,500,000 could be found by the government.

The debentures are callable at $106 within 30 days' notice until Nov. 1, 1962, and are convertible into 1,080,000 shares of B.C. Power until Nov. 3, 1969.

For the smaller common shareholder of B.C. Power, however, while the long-term prospects may be enhanced by the convertibility issue, there is also the prospect of a greatly diminished cash distribution from the B.C. Electric sale—$18 to $19 a share instead of $22 to $23—and the possibility of considerable delay in the eventual winding up of B.C. Power.

According to B.C. Power president A. Bruce Robertson, this issue is not the only legal step being contemplated by the company in its attempt to win better terms.

CHRYSLER, UAW REACH AGREEMENT

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corporation and the United Auto Workers' Union reached an 11th-hour agreement on a new three-year labor contract Thursday night. A strike was narrowly averted.

The Chrysler pact brought peace between the UAW and all the automakers, except the smallest of all, Studebaker-Packard. Three-year contracts previously had been negotiated by General Motors, Ford and American Motors.

DOLLAR DISCOUNT HELPED

Canada's Trade Deficit Cut by $22.9 Millions

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's merchandise trade deficit was cut sharply by a $22,900,000 surplus in August as the Canadian dollar's exchange discount made its effects felt.

The August trade surplus—fifth monthly surplus of the year—left the country with a relatively small $14,700,000 trade deficit for the first eight months of 1961, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Last year, despite a $35,900,000 surplus in August, there was a $126,300,000 deficit for the January-August period, and 1960 ended with a $96,000,000 deficit—excess of imports over exports.

August exports totalled $517,100,000, an increase of 7.6 per cent from $480,400,000 a year earlier. The month's imports showed a year-to-year gain of 11.2 per cent to $494,200,000 from $444,500,000.

The DBS report said part of these increases, in both exports and imports, reflects the changed foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar. In August, 1960, the dollar was at a premium of around 3 per cent above the U.S. dollar compared with a discount of 3 per cent this summer following the June 20 budget.

Informants explained that since most of Canada's trade, both import purchases and export sales, is conducted in terms of U.S. dollars, the Canadian dollar value of both exports and imports is higher.

EXPORTS INCREASE

The value gain in August exports compared with a year earlier was due mainly to a 30 per cent increase in exports to foreign markets apart from the United States and Commonwealth, plus slight gains in sales to the U.S. and Britain.

Increased buying from the United States, up 18.3 per cent, accounted for virtually all of the August rise in imports.

During the January-August period, total exports were 4.8 per cent higher than a year earlier at $3,716,600,000 compared with $3,547,700,000.

Imports in the eight months, despite the big gain in August, were only 1.6 per cent higher at $3,731,300,000 compared with $3,674,000,000.

Trade figures by major areas for the January-August period this year and last, in millions of dollars:

EXPORTS	1961	1960
United Stats	$1,998.8	$2,054.3
United Kingdm	590.6	602.6
Other Cmwlth	214.6	214.8
All others	912.6	676.1
Total	$3,716.6	$3,547.7
IMPORTS	1961	1960
United Stats	$2,521.0	$2,495.9
United Kingdm	418.9	403.9
Other Cmwlth	176.6	177.2
All others	614.8	597.1
Total	$3,731.3	$3,674.0

Pearson Backs ECM Moves

WINNIPEG (CP) — Liberal leader Lester Pearson urged the federal government Thursday to support a recommendation that the United States form a trade partnership with the European Common Market.

Mr. Pearson also expressed hope that the United States Congress will accept the report presented to it next Wednesday. The report was prepared by former U.S. secretary of state, Christian Herter.

Mr. Pearson said it would be a "great thing" if Canada also joined the partnership along with the United States.

The Liberal leader agreed with the report's proposal that the long-term goal should be to create a free world economic community.

Canadian Ports Freight Handle Shows Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Volume of freight handled at Canadian ports in the first eight months of 1961 rose 3.9 per cent from the comparable 1960 total, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has announced.

January - August tonnage totalled 109,513,000 against 105,420,300 last year. Volume in August alone was up 6.2 per cent to 21,720,800 tons from 20,449,900 a year earlier.

Eight-month freight totals in the foreign service fell to 55,353,200 tons from 57,037,500 in the same period last year. Volume in the coastal service rose to 54,160,000 tons from 48,382,800.

"Shaving"–can it make a whisky taste better?
"Sure it can," says Harry Hallett, our cooper.
"See this piece of oak I'm shaving? That's what we call a stave, and staves fit together to make casks for the whisky to mature in. They have to fit exactly so the whisky can 'breathe' just right. If they don't, the cask is too tight and this is bad for the whisky. But my casks fit, and the whisky is properly matured.

Splinter Sect Douk Admits Bombing Guilt

From The Times News Services

NELSON — A silver-haired, former railway section hand, who told his lawyer he was tired of lying, changed a plea of not guilty to guilty here Thursday on a charge of unlawfully possessing explosives.

Michael Bayoff, 55, of Wyndell, was remanded until Dec. 4 for sentence by County Court Judge E. P. Dawson.

Bayoff, associated with a splinter group, not recognized by the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect, asked, as he changed his plea, that other bombers and burners surrender peacefully to the police.

QUICK RECAPTURE

BURNABY — Police late Thursday recaptured an Oakalla prisoner who fled from the institution after leaving a work party earlier in the day.

Seventeen-year-old Robert Allen gave up without a struggle when apprehended near the prison a short time after climbing a fence and fleeing into bushland.

He was sentenced to the prison last month for possession of an offensive weapon.

HIT-RUN ACCIDENT

HOPE — RCMP are investigating the highway death of an elderly Yale man, struck by a car whose driver sped off and left him lying on the road.

Dead is 67-year-old Dominic Wallace.

FEW PAY INCREASES

VANCOUVER — Five more British Columbia school districts have reported agreement on teacher salary scales.

Forty-six districts have now negotiated agreements, the B.C. School Trustees' Association said Thursday. The majority of Vancouver's 1,288 elementary teachers have settled for no wage increases.

BCE OFFICER RESIGNS

VANCOUVER—Dr. Larry B. Jack, a British Columbia Electric executive for 16 years, has resigned the recently government-expropriated utility.

The 52-year-old Dr. Jack, a close friend of the late company chairman, Dr. A. E. Grauer, will become labor relations officer of the B.C. shipping federation.

Soldiers Exchanged

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Egypt and Syria agreed Thursday to exchange 780 Egyptian soldiers in Syria for 960 Syrian soldiers in Egypt. The Arab League was asked to organize the exchange. Syria broke its link with Egypt in the United Arab Republic last month.

KENNEDY SEEKING TO EASE PRESSURE?

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy may be seeking to ease political and military pressures at home without increasing criticism abroad with his inconclusive new policy on nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

While giving the go-ahead on scientific preparations for resumption of tests, Kennedy allowed himself sufficient leeway to keep the door closed on atmospheric blasts for some time to come, if he so chooses.

In the back of his mind may be the hope that meantime the Russians may finally agree to sign a nuclear test ban treaty on Western terms, which includes strict inspection.

Test Site Selection Tough Task for AEC

WASHINGTON (CP) — Selecting a site to prepare for possible resumption of nuclear tests in the atmosphere is the toughest job now facing the Atomic Energy Commission.

Nuclear experts said the old Nevada proving grounds are inadequate for firing missiles with nuclear warheads. And, because of India's opposition in the United Nations trusteeship council, the United States would rather not try to reopen its nuclear test site in the South Pacific region of the Marshall Islands. The U.S. is the UN trustee for these islands.

One authority said that with winter coming up, the Arctic would be too cold for a test site and besides Canada might object.

In the end, because of fears of fallout, the United States may be forced to use barges or other offshore installations firing missiles into the South Pacific and South Atlantic.

Authorities estimated it may take several months to complete preparations for any test.

Ancient Pub Burned

LONDON (AP) — Ye Old Cheshire Cheese, a 300-year-old pub which once was the favorite hangout of Dr. Samuel Johnson and Charles Dickens, was badly damaged by fire Thursday. The pub opens on an alley off Fleet Street, the London press centre. In addition to its regular clientele of reporters it is visited each year by thousands of tourists.

NEW BLASTS WOULD BE SMALL

No U.S. 'Superbomb' Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Officials said today the United States can be expected to explode several new types of improved nuclear weapons if President Kennedy decides to order test firings in the atmosphere.

Officials reported that U.S. experts do not have in mind exploding superbombs of the kind that Russia fired Monday with a force of 50 megatons. On the contrary, they said, the atmospheric explosions would be relatively small, yet larger than tests conducted underground.

Initial preparations which are now beginning, it was learned, consist of a survey of the types of nuclear weapons which are ready or can be made ready for testing and selection of the sites at which the tests would be conducted. The second stage will consist of the physical preparation for the actual explosions.

The tasks of preparation fall primarily on the defence department and the Atomic Energy Commission. The final decision of whether atmospheric explosions will be carried out will be made by the president.

Even the Cast Has a Ball At Spirited Minstrel Show

By IAIN HUNTER

One of the best things about the Solarium Junior League's minstrel show is that everyone taking part—on the stage or at the door—is obviously having a whale of a time.

This feeling of fun and frivolity Thursday night at Oak Bay Junior High School soon overcame the initial restraint of the performers and the inevitable embarrassment of the audience.

The typical minstrel show humor has never been renowned for its quality. But Thursday night, after a steady barrage of "corn," the audience found itself laughing at the most extraordinary things after the first hour or so.

The "flashback" skit, "Illicit Lover," however, would convulse any audience anywhere.

Hugh Curtis makes a well-confused and exasperated Mr. Interlocutor. And with good reason as this show almost carries spontaneity to the point of chaos.

But there is nothing chaotic about the singing. Perhaps the chorus could show a little more spirit, but the quality of its singing leaves little to be desired.

This in spite of the fact that the show does not lean heavily on one or two soloists but gives many of the chorus members a chance to do their solo bit.

All in all, the show, despite a few awkward moments in between numbers and a few technical faults in lighting and production, remains a good piece of fun.

There will be two more performances, tonight and Saturday at 8.15 p.m. in the Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium.

Labor's Ire Directed At 'K-Bomb'

A Victoria trade unionist's on-the-spot resolution condemning the "K-bomb" was given overwhelming endorsement by 356 delegates to the British Columbia Federation of Labor convention last week.

Delegate A. W. Toone, from the Victoria Labor Council, brought forth the resolution on United Nations Day as companion to a previously heard formal resolution supporting disarmament and effective use of the United Nations to settle disputes.

"All deliberations will be for nothing if the international atomic duel is allowed to continue," Mr. Toone told the convention.

"We must protest in the strongest terms against Mr. Khrushchev and all who agree with him and condone the explosion of a 50-megaton bomb," he said.

"The action of the USSR is particularly inexcusable, intolerant, irresponsible and juvenile. The concern it creates cuts across all beliefs and party lines. It is a vicious, sweep lines. It is a vicious, sweeping menace."

NO DOUBT

Mr. Toone said adoption of the resolution should leave no doubt as to the opposition of the trade union movement in British Columbia as to the use and testing of nuclear weapons of war.

"We have an international competition for power that is prepared to create a weapon of war which ignores human rights and human values.

"Continued explosion of nuclear weapons—and one so powerful as a 50-megaton bomb with the effect this can have on humanity—is beyond the comprehension of the average person," Mr. Toone said.

Dawdling Dawdler At Jamaica

Ormond Griffin, retired Victoria fireman, has reached Jamaica on his take-it-easy small boat voyage around the world.

He left here in September, 1960, in his appropriately-named 50-foot ketch Dawdler, cruising leisurely down the coast to Mexico.

From there he moved on to Panama by easy stages, cruised in the Caribbean Sea and finally made port at Kingston, where he plans to stay the winter.

On most of the voyage, Mr. Griffin, 67, was a "lone-hander", although he picked up occasional passengers between ports.

He hopes to continue his voyage after the hurricane season, crossing the Atlantic to South Africa, across the Indian Ocean to Australia, then back home.

EDITOR'S GOOD IDEA SOON 'DEAD'

NEW YORK (AP)—Humorist James Thurber was a reporter for a New York newspaper in his younger days. One day his editor decided that all stories should begin with one-word first paragraphs.

Thurber responded by handing a story in this manner.

"Dead!"

"That was what the man was the police found in an areaway last night."

The editor soon rescinded his edict.

JAMES THURBER
. . . laughter his legacy

Life and Hard Times Ended for Humorist

NEW YORK (AP)—James Thurber, whose writings and drawings kept a generation of North Americans laughing, died Thursday. He was 66.

The writer and cartoon artist died of pneumonia and respiratory complications which followed a brain operation he underwent after a blood clot caused his collapse in a hotel room Oct. 4.

Although he showed some improvement following the operation, he remained in serious condition until he died.

Thurber wrote and illustrated about two dozen books. His writings included magazine short stories, fables and humorous personal essays, and he drew countless cartoons.

Although Thurber's humor often depended on imagination, he wrote it in a precise, careful style and was known to rewrite a book as many as 25 times. Each word seemed to fit snugly into his sentences.

The New Yorker magazine, which he joined in its infancy, was his main vehicle, but his humorous ideas got wider circulation when two of his works were made into motion pictures. They were The Secret Life of Walter Mitty, the wild day-dreaming of a mousy man, and The Male Animal, a study of Campus life on which he collaborated with Elliott Nugent, a classmate at Ohio State University.

One of Thurber's best known books was My Life and Hard Times, a collection of New Yorker pieces dealing with Thurber's youth in Columbus, Ohio, his birthplace. Included in that book were such classics as The Night the Ghost Got In and The Day the Dam Broke.

Thurber was a newspaper man in Columbus, Paris and New York before joining the New Yorker magazine in 1925.

He was blinded in one eye by a child's arrow while still a boy and lost the sight of the other eye in a series of cateract operations during the last few years.

U.K. Money Shift Near?

LONDON (AP) — Britain was reported Thursday to be nearing a final decision to convert to decimal coinage.

Reports said Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd will make a statement on the long-discussed switch before Christmas.

Most favored plan is to go over to a new shilling worth 10 pennies and a pound worth 10 shillings.

The shilling (14½ cents) now is made up of 12 pennies. There are 20 shillings in the pound ($2.90).

Hot Head Lifts Bruins To Big Win Over Habs

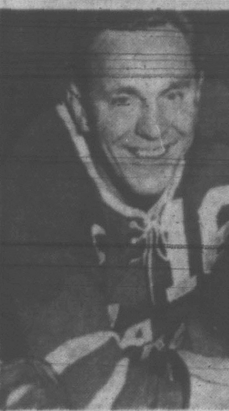
SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

The hockey house of Eddie Dorohoy crashed into little pieces one December night in 1959.

That was the night of the 13th at Seattle when Eddie, toiling for Vancouver Canucks, crossed shins with the charging Les Hunt and spun awkwardly to the ice, his right leg broken in two places.



EDDIE DOROHOY

Now, almost two years later, the leg is back in working order, but Dorohoy is still trying to glue together the pieces of his puck career and get back into the race for the Western Hockey League's all-time point crown.

All he needs to give it another try is to sign a contract. But the "Pistol" of the ice lanes says he isn't writing Edward Dorohoy on any dotted line until he gets a little matter of $3,200 settled. That's the amount Eddie figures he has coming for back salary, medical expenses and a few incidentals. His belief is strong enough that he has issued a writ against the Canucks and Winnipeg Warriors, who suspended operations this season.

It could still be settled out of court. Dorohoy was at Vancouver today to discuss the matter with the Canucks, who now own his contract. He wants to play, but first he wants to catch up on his pay.

"I'm all ready to give it a good whirl," he said Thursday, fidgetting on the sofa of his pin-neat Newton Street bungalow. "Doctors tell me the bone is as strong as it will ever be. I see no reason why I can't go back to playing. But I don't intend to play until I get paid."

Also Generous With Hockey Talents

Before the Hunt collision, Dorohoy had nailed together a tidy little hockey house in 12 professional seasons. During his 10 WHL campaigns he twice topped the circuit in assists. He took the league scoring title with Victoria in 1950-51, the Prairie Division point crown with 101 points and the division's most-valuable-player award with Calgary three years ago.

He had also collected more points than any other player in WHL history—812, on 291 goals and 521 assists. But while he was growing weary from lugging various casts around, Seattle's Guyle Fielder moved out in front. Slippery Guyle now has 883, including 11 this season.

Among his other accomplishments, Eddie is perhaps the best non-stop talker in hockey history, a talent which has earned him almost as much fame as his skill with a puck. Ask him a question and you're liable to get a 60-minute answer.

But that's only one facet of the Dorohoy personality. He may be generous with words, but he gives just as freely of his talents. Ask him to play a hockey game and you will surely get 60 minutes of his best efforts.

Dorohoy comes to play. And he plays to win.

There's also the little matter of determination. Even for a guy who can smile and shrug off his leg fracture as "part of the game," the sad comedy of his slow-to-mend leg has been somewhat more than disheartening.

Nobody Able to Make a Decision

In the summer following his mishap, he slipped on stairs at home and suffered a hairline fracture of the ankle, below the original breaks. On went another cast. Later he went back to work to strengthen the leg, pedalling endless miles to nowhere on a rented bicycle machine in his basement, lifting weights with the leg, doing a flock of other exercises and skating twice daily when possible. Dorohoy did his part, but nature wouldn't co-operate and the bones knitted with frustrating slowness.

Doctors hinted he might be able to play in late November. He couldn't. In mid-December Canucks sold his contract to the Warriors and one medical prediction set Eddie's starting time at late January. At that time Victoria Cougars were ready to make a deal for his services, turned it down when X-rays showed the leg hadn't healed enough.

Loaned back to Vancouver at the end of February, Eddie dressed for two games and then was sent home by the Canucks. The summer came and went with no answers to queries on his status and salary to the Vancouver and Winnipeg clubs and to league president Al Leader.

"It's a real bunch of nonsense," snorts the Pistol. "It's been a mess from the start. People are just trying to pass the buck. Nobody has been able to make a decision one way or another."

"I've made my stand by issuing a writ. We have to prove who is right."

Handled in Unprofessional Manner

Now comes the question:

How much of Dorohoy's talents have been stolen by almost two seasons away from puck battles and from the effect of the leg fracture?

There's only one way to find out—put him on the ice with a WHL team.

"Either I can play or I can't," says Eddie. "It's time to find out."

It could also be time to find out what's wrong with the WHL front office. Whether Dorohoy is right or wrong, president Leader should have made a definite ruling on his case long before the current season started. Sometimes there seems to be one interpretation of rules for players and another for club owners. There may have been a breach of contract. Maybe Eddie should be declared a free agent. Perhaps he is to blame for some of his troubles. Certainly the matter has been handled in an unprofessional manner by a circuit that admits to major league ambitions.

Dorohoy may never make it back as a pro, but he's prepared for that, too.

"If I can't play pro," he says, "I want to get my amateur card back and play here in Victoria. I want to play hockey."

As we said, Dorohoy comes to play.

Rookie Goalie Excels With Stick, Fists; Socks Bonin

By The Canadian Press

Is Don Head that hot? Before the National Hockey League started, Boston Bruins' coach Phil Watson confidently picked his goaler for stardom.

His foresight looked terribly myopic until the last three Boston games, when after a dismal record of seven losses and a tie, the Bruins came through with two wins and a tie.

Head got one shutout and allowed only an even two goals in each of two games.

Thursday, the 28-year-old rookie goalie blocked 40 shots by Montreal Canadiens as Watson's hustlers downed the league-leading Montrealers 5-2.

Head also managed to get into a fight, his third of the season. He and Marcel Bonin traded blows in the first period, were assessed five-minute penalties each.

SAWCHUK SPARKLES

In Detroit, where a victory by New York Rangers could have put them in first place ahead of Montreal, Red Wings goaler Terry Sawchuk proved he still has what Watson hopes Head has.

Sawchuk, getting superb protection from his defence, made 21 saves and blanked New York 1-0. Gordie Howe scored the only goal Detroit needed to win the game and take over sole possession of fourth place, breaking a tie with Chicago Black Hawks.

It was the first shutout of the season for Sawchuk, and the 84th in his brilliant 12-season career.

Lorne (Gump) Worsley was equally brilliant in the Ranger nets, stopping 27 shots, but had no chance on Howe's goal, which came on a power play.

HOWE GETS 475TH

The big Detroit right winger took two swipes at a rebound on Ed Litzenberger's shot before he got control and lifted the puck over Worsley at 4.48 of the second period. It was his 475th regular-season goal in a 16-year career with Detroit.

The Red Wings' defence was at its best in the third period when for a minute and 10 seconds the Rangers held a two-man advantage and got nowhere.

The defence apparently has not suffered from the absence of Howie Young, a rough young blue-line blocker who was benched after he incurred 14 minutes in penalties in a game against Montreal last Saturday.

Detroit general manager Jack Adams has announced Young will continue to practice with the Red Wings although it isn't expected he will play with them again. All other NHL clubs passed Young when Detroit put him on waivers.

HABS OUTSKATED

Sawchuk's shutout was the second in the NHL this season. The first was Head's, which came last week when Boston began its battle to escape the basement by beating Detroit 4-0.

Watson's team outskated the Canadiens all the way, although allowing them an edge in shots on goal. Fine goaling by Jacques Plante kept the score from soaring even higher.

Head was cleanly beaten on both Montreal goals. He could not see Claude Provost's shot, screened by Boston defenceman Doug Mohns, and had no chance on a booming 30-footer by Bernie Geoffrion, reputed possessor of the hardest shot in the NHL.

Andre Pronovost scored two goals to lead the Boston offence. He seems to have a personal grudge against Montreal for dealing him off to Boston last season—all three of his season's goals have been against the Canadiens.

MOHNS FIRED WINNER

Don McKenney got Boston's first goal and Pronovost followed it up to give the Bruins a 2-0 lead in the first period.

Montreal briefly held a tie in the second before Mohns young Bob Beckett, recently recalled from Providence, of the American Hockey League, got the insurance marker.

Pronovost ended the scoring at 2.34 of the third period.

Boston got good defensive work out of newcomers Pat Stapleton and Ed Westphall.

BRUIN-BAITER

Perhaps the most famous bear-wrestler in National Hockey League, Montreal winger Marcel Bonin put another Bruin to the test Thursday. This Bruin, Boston goalie Don Head (white sweater), proved just as hard to handle as the bear Bonin once was reported to have wrestled. No-decision bout resulted in majors to both but Head enjoyed final chuckle as Boston walked off with 5-2 victory.

Pride at Stake In Lion Finale

The Western Football Conference ends its 1961 regular schedule this weekend with two games in which little else but pride is at stake.

The order of finish in the league standings and the playoff spots have been decided.

Edmonton fans may be in for a preview of the Western playoff final when first-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers take on the Eskimos Saturday night.

Winnipeg and Edmonton finished one-two in the standings and are favored to meet in a best-of-three playoff to decide the West's representative in the Grey Cup classic at Toronto Dec. 2.

But Calgary Stampeders, who meet B.C. Lions in Vancouver Sunday afternoon, may upset the applecart. The third-place Stampeders meet the Eskimos in a two-game, total-point semifinal to decide who goes against the Bombers. Winnipeg received a bye into the final.

Bomber coach Bud Grant has soothed Edmonton fears that he will not use some of his stars Saturday by announcing that Kenny Ploen will start at quarterback.

It had been feared Grant might bench some of his ace performers to make sure they are healthy for the final. Grant's answer: "We don't have any second-stringers on this team."

EXPECTS TOUGH GAME

Coach Dave Skrien of the Lions expects a tough game from the Stamps because he thinks they will be using it as a playoff tuneup. He may have halfback Bob Jeter back in the lineup after sitting out three games with an injury.

Although the Lions finished last in the league race, Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs is approaching the game with caution.

"The Lions defence has improved tremendously," he said. "Our offence isn't as good as the last time we played."

Calgary polished off the Lions 28-9 in their last meeting Sept. 29.

Gayford Connects With Perfect Ride

NEW YORK (CP) — Tom Gayford, of Toronto, riding his favorite Blue Beau, won the international jumping event Thursday night for the second year running and moved the Canadian equestrian team into third place in the overall standing.

Gayford, 32, of Toronto, took the difficult "puissance" high jump at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden.

He performed in flawless fashion to defeat teammate Jim Elder of Aurora, Ont., two Americans and a Mexican in the five-horse jump-off.

Gayford's win gave the Canadians a total of 34 points, six less than the leading Argentine team.

It was also the second Canadian win of the eight-day show after three days of competition. In the low-score challenge trophy event, the Canadians, led by team captain Doug Cudney of Winona, Ont., captured the first leg Wednesday night.

Gayford, however, is behind Argentina's Dr. Hugo Arrambide in the defence of his individual jumping championship, won here last November.

Of the five individual events, Dr. Arrambide has won two and is the leading individual rider with 26 points.

Coach Needs Year To Study Material

EDMONTON (CP) — Track and field, glamor sport of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, dominated first-round committee meetings at the annual AAU convention.

In more than 12 hours of debate Thursday, the track and field committee approved a long list of recommendations for over-all union approval. Most were expected to receive ratification during the general sessions.

Key proposals include manner of selecting coaches and managers for international track and field teams, sites for 13 Canadian championships, establishment of a committee to honor athletes at various levels of proficiency and payment of expenses of amateurs by clubs and organizations sponsoring meets.

MANAGER NAMED

The committee recommended that Ken Twigg, of Toronto, incoming track and field chairman, be appointed manager of Canada's British Empire Games team which travels to Perth, Australia, next November.

It also recommended that a mail vote be taken to select a 1962 coach, with future coaches nominated by branches prior to an annual meeting and selected by the union at least one calendar year ahead of the event.

Two western coaches, both of whom have served on Canadian teams, backed the committee action, Bob Adams, of Saskatoon, 1958 British Empire Games coach, and Lloyd Swindells, of Vancouver, coach of several international teams, said a year is needed by a coach to study progress of athletes he later will handle.

BLACKMAIL CHARGED

Bitter exchanges came during study of the question of paying travel and living expenses of "name" athletes.

Several delegates said that coaches of these performers attempt to "blackmail" clubs sponsoring meets to pay the fare of lesser competitors from the same club. Delegates said a package deal will be offered, all or nothing.

Graham Knox said sponsors who fall for the plan "are suckers". He suggested action by branch executives to clamp down on such methods before "serious problems develop".

Japanese Ace Out in Front

TOKYO (AP) — Latsuruzo Mita, 47-year-old golf veteran, fired an even 72 par for a one-stroke lead Thursday in the opening round of a four-day international tournament.

Arnold Palmer, of Latrobe, Pa., winner of the 1961 British Open golf tournament, and four Japanese tied for second place with 73.

Gary Player of South Africa, the tournament's favorite, shot a 75 and was tied for 10th place with Japan's professional golf king, Pete Nakamura, and three others.

FACTIONS UNITE . . . . . . ON REFERENCE TERMS

Lion Probers Agree

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two membership groups who have been sparring over an investigation into the B.C. Lions football club have settled their differences, a lawyer for one of the groups said.

Don Lanskail, representing what he called one of the "two loosely-knit" groups, said a general agreement on terms of reference was reached Thursday after a pair of two-hour meetings.

Lanskail made the announcement on a television program, although a representative of the second group said no statement was to be issued until today. A press conference has been called today at which the agreement is expected to be confirmed.

The issue began when one of the groups called for a special membership meeting last month, a meeting which voted for an investigation into the Western Football Conference team's affairs. Lions are in the Conference cellar with one win and two ties in 15 games.

The second group opposed the first group, of which Lanskail belongs, and threatened to present a petition—signed by 130 Lions' shareholders—to the directors. The petition asked that the investigation be cancelled.

A spokesman for the second group said Thursday night that the petition will be withdrawn.

Now, apparently, the investigation will go on.

Canada's Top Player In City Shuttle Meet

Small Fortune Needed To Enter Richest Race

JOHN FRASER
. . . third seed

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Someone remarked the other day that for $181,419, he'd enter the Garden State Stakes himself if he thought he could make 1 1-16 miles on all fours.

Which brings to the fore the real attraction of this annual fall gallop at Garden State Park for two-year-olds—money.

Even the losers — second, third and fourth finishers— go home with enough to keep hay in the barn for many a day. And this brings up the question: Where does all the loot come from?

Well, let's take this year's ninth run for gold, in which pre-race dope indicates either Verne Winchell's Donut King or Peter Salmen's Crimson Satin will lead home an expected field of 12.

Garden State starts the money rolling with a $125,600 contribution. Then they turn it over to the horse owners. Originally, in August, last year 749 horses were nominated at $15 each, for a total of $11,235. On or before Dec. 15, another 178 were named at a cost of $35 each, adding up to $6,230.

By March 15, in order to keep eligible, 509 of the 927 nominees forked over $100 each—$50,900 in all. Four months later, 300 of these dumped in another $250 each, a total of $75,000. Then, if you discover you have a likely Garden State entry, it costs $10,000 to become a supplementary entry. El Peco's ranch was one of these.

This morning it costs each owner $1,000 to enter, and if his horse actually comes out of the gate Saturday he digs for another $1,000. With 12 starters this would be another $24,000. Here's what you get: $302,365. The winner takes down $181,419; second place earns $60,473; third pockets $30,236, and fourth gets $15,118.

An additional $15,118 is paid in breeder awards to the top four finishers.

Most of the probable starters were on the track Thursday for workouts. Donut King, to be ridden by Donald Pierce, went half a mile in .48. Walnut Farm's Su Ka Wa and Mrs. worked the same distance. Adele L. Rand's Green Ticket both in .46.

Others expected to start are Philip Godfrey's Stinson Beach, the Arnold Winick trained entry of R. F. Bensinger's Pinsetter and Mrs. Herbert H. Herff's Obey, Elkcam Stable's Padded Cell, R. S. Howard and Dave Sawaya's Nijan, Golden Triangle Stable's Point Park, and Brookfield Farm's In Force.

Fraser Rated Third in B.C.

A former Victorian has been ranked No. 1 in the B.C. men's open division tennis ratings.

Reidar Getz, a student at Modesto (Calif.) Junior College, won just one tournament but received sufficient points through good performances in other competitions to head the list.

John Fraser, of Victoria, is No. 3 in the men's division, and is the first junior in six years to crack senior men's rankings.

Fraser was unranked in junior division due to insufficient data. He played most of his tennis in Eastern Canada this summer.

Heading the women's list is Vicki Berner of Vancouver. She won three tournaments and then added the Canadian junior women's title to her crown.

BUILT WILLOWS TRACK

'Man of His Word' Sam Randall Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Samuel W. Randall, B.C.'s father of horse racing, died Thursday at the age of 80.

Mr. Randall, who started in racing here in 1920 more by accident than design, was director of the Ascot Jockey Club and Vancouver Thoroughbred Association for 35 years. He also operated Exhibition Park race track and built the former Willows track at Victoria and Lansdowne Park on Lulu Island.

Mr. Randall had been confined to his home for about six years.

Racing associate Jack Diamond, president of the B.C. Turf and Country Club, called him "a man of his word—everything he promised he lived up to."

Ken McConnell, secretary-commissioner of the B.C. Racing Commission, said: "Sam Randall was one of the great personalities in horse racing in B.C. for many years. He was a fine man and will be greatly missed."

Born near Toronto, Mr. Randall came here in 1908. He became a senior executive in a home appliance company, managing company stores throughout Canada.

Besides his track interests on Vancouver Island and the mainland, he developed Ascot Stock Farms and Goodwood Dairy and Stock Farms, also on nearby Lulu Island.

Mr. Randall's wife, Sarah Catherine, died in 1951.

He is survived by three sons, William, John and Robert, all of Vancouver.

Funeral service will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Get - There - First Habit Feature of Ron's Style

Wallace Milligan, insurance salesman and soccer coach, recently brought out a young player for a workout with Wally's Victoria United club.

Fullback Ron Jenkin quickly stepped across the dressing room to greet the youngster, who didn't stay with the club. Ron was the first to try and make the newcomer feel at home. Being first in United activities is a Jenkin habit.

Pacific Coast Soccer League rivals found that Ron also has a knack of getting there first on the playing pitch. That's his style and it's one reason why the Victoria defence is rated one of the best in PCSL circles.

Fine play by rookie netminder Barry Sadler has been the backbone of the United defence. His skill, combined with steady play of defenders Jenkin, Harry Carruthers, Len Anderson, George Wright, Bobby Mars and Harold Holroyd, has kept Victoria's goals-against average to a respectable figure.

Effective defence, of course, helps keep Milligan smiling and the coach has been particularly pleased with Jenkin.

Ron may not be the most spectacular player in Western Canada's premier soccer circuit, but he must rate among its most effective performers.

Jenkin, says Milligan, is "steady as a rock." He shows excellent anticipation, works constructively and gets the job done. The coach has seen the value of his work in past games and he expects to again see it at Royal Athletic Park Saturday, when United tackles Vancouver Canadians in an important clash.

Canadians have second place, an unbeaten record and Neil McEachnie, the league's leading scorer. United has the third spot and, as mentioned, one of the tougher defences McEachnie can expect to face in league play this season.

Ron Likes to See What Goes On

While Jenkin's efforts on the field should be enough to impress most coaches, Milligan is just as impressed with Ron's off-field actions.

"He's a real club man," says Wally. "He's the kind of player you always want on your side. He never misses a practice and is right behind anything to help the team.

"On the field, he tries to be constructive. He uses his brains."

There's a reason why Jenkin prefers a fullback's spot. Ron, who arrived in Victoria five years ago after playing with Saltash in England's Southwestern League, likes to watch what's going on up front.

"You get a good opportunity to spot the weaknesses from that position," Jenkins says, "and you know where to work the ball."

Jenkin, who also performed locally with Canadian Scottish, has had a good opportunity to size up the difference between soccer in Canada and the booting style in England.

"The standard is definitely improving here," he says. The main difference, he suggests, is that Canadian soccer players try taking out the man more than do their British counterparts.

Jenkin doesn't particularly lean towards roughhouse soccer. But even gentlemanly play can annoy rivals. That's another point Ron hopes to prove Saturday at the expense of McEachnie and his pals, starting at 2 p.m.

FITBA' EYES STAY GLUED TO LEADERS

There could be some new faces in the top places after Sunday's Victoria and District Soccer League games.

League-leading Gorge takes on fourth-place Brodies at Topaz. Only two points separate the teams. Kickers travel to Duncan and could take over first place with a win and a Gorge defeat.

In other games Nanaimo and Vic West clash at Heywood Avenue Park; Esquimalt and Scottish meet at Bullen; Evcoes and Heaneys collide at Central, and Saanich and Ladysmith tangle at Reynolds. All games start at 2 o'clock.

Oak Bay Sports Unbeaten Record

Three games are on tap in the Victoria Union Rugby League Saturday.

Unbeaten Oak Bay Reds meet Royal Roads at Royal Roads; Oak Bay Whites play College "A" at Windsor Park, and NTS plays College "B" at Naden. Matches commence at 2.30 p.m.

TWO MORE RUSS BOMBS REPORTED BY JAPANESE

TOKYO (AP) — The Japan Meteorological Agency Thursday recorded explosions believed to be Soviet nuclear blasts—possibly the same two reported earlier by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

The agency said abnormal atmospheric vibrations were recorded by observatories throughout Japan.

The vibrations indicated that the explosion was in the range of a few megatons—of a force up to a few million tons of TNT.

The AEC reported two Soviet nuclear explosions Thursday in the range of from 20,000 to 500,000 tons of TNT.

Both the AEC and Japanese reports placed the blasts in the Novya Zemlya Soviet test area in the Arctic.

'FREE EXPRESSION' NECESSITY

Press Plays Vital Role—Nehru

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru said Thursday the press plays a vital role in modern life and it would be unfortunate if newspapers were limited in any way by government action.

He was opening the two-day Indian phase of the Commonwealth Press Union conference which began with a session in Karachi, Pakistan, earlier this week.

More than 60 newspaper editors and executives from 14 Commonwealth countries, including Canada, are attending the conference.

Nehru said his government had sometimes felt restrictions were desirable, not on a political plane, but when press publicity created bitter passions and conflict among communities.

India had, however, "resisted temptation" because it was better to rely on the good sense of people controlling newspapers rather than resort to government action. India believes in a free and independent press, he added.

Nehru warned of the dangers where free expression became limited because of the gradual disappearance of old-style individual newspapers and their merger into larger associations.

Nehru invited delegates to consider problems the Commonwealth might have to face in the future.

He said the Commonwealth association was unique and the mere fact of its existence was both surprising and pleasing. The Commonwealth had adapted itself to changing conditions.

Any organization that had the capacity to adapt itself "has value in it — it is not something tied up and in a rut," he said.

Even republican members of the Commonwealth recognized the great value of independent countries pursuing their own policies while still trying to meet together and understand each other.

". . . This form of association is so good that I hope this kind of thing will continue not only in this Commonwealth but generally in the world," he said.

U.K. IMMIGRATION CUT WON'T AFFECT CANADA

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal government officials said Thursday the British government's bill to curb immigration from other Commonwealth countries will have practically no effect on the movement of Canadians to Britain. The quota system does not cover immigrants who are skilled and have a job waiting for them. Officials here said the Canadian emigrants to Britain fall in those classes.

JOBS FOR 400 CONSTRUCTION WORKERS

Mill Starts Aug. 15, 1964, 'at 8 A.M.'

CROFTON—Target date for the startup of the $25,000,000 newsprint mill to be added to the B.C. Forest Products Ltd. pulp mill here is "Aug. 15, 1964, at 8 a.m.," general manager John R. Grieve said here this week.

Salesmen already have firm orders for newsprint from the new mill, which is designed to produce 350 tons per day.

400 WORKERS

During construction of the mill, the labor force will reach peaks of at least 400 in the summers of 1962, 1963 and 1964, he said.

When in operation the mill will employ 150 men, most of them specialists, but there will be room for local workers. Payroll will be $700,000 per year.

"Statistics show that because of this, there will be 233 additional new jobs in the district—people working in clothing stores, banks, gas stations, and other similar jobs," Mr. Grieve said.

Another impact of the mill on the local economy will be through taxation, he said.

NEW MONEY

The newsprint mill will provide $197,000 of new money in addition to the $387,000 already paid by the pulp mill, which will mean a reduction of five mills on the North Cowichan municipal budget of $870,000.

Fuller utilization of timber and diversification of operation were the two main reasons for the proposed construction of the mill, he said.

ISLAND DIGEST

V.I. ROUNDUP

Deadline Tonight On Sale of Ferry

Deadline of midnight tonight has been set on the offer for sale of the Mv. Island Princess to the provincial government.

The ferry, now operating on the Steveston-Gulf Islands service, is offered for sale by Coast Ferries Ltd.

Capt. O. H. New, company president, said the deadline for sale was due to the need to find work for the ferry in another area of the B.C. coast if the government does not buy.

Capt. New said that his company can no longer afford to carry on the present service and has decided to sell for the depreciated value set by government appraisers.

Originally it was intended to terminate the service Sept. 11, but in the interests of island residents, the date of termination was extended to Nov. 15.

Premier Bennett said that the government would take over the service if it was dropped by the company.

Restrictions Off On Clam-Digging

Restrictions on digging clams have been removed from all areas of Vancouver Island, according to a federal fisheries announcement.

They were imposed on various waters in 1957, following an infestation of red tide, but were gradually lifted until only the taking of butter clams in Courtney and Campbell River was prohibited. The new order opens these areas for digging.

Did Trilby Go Into a Trance?

MAPLE BAY—The story of a dog named Trilby, who must have gone into a trance like her 19th Century counterpart, was told here this week, but with a happy ending.

A giant German short-haired pointer, quiet and well behaved, she belongs to Mrs. Ellen Tait, Norcross Road, Duncan.

On Tuesday Mrs. Jean Grumbach, Maple Bay, visited Mrs. Tait, and took along a pot of bones for Trilby. On arrival she took the pot from the trunk of the car, but left the trunk lid open.

After having lunch she set off for Victoria. She noticed the trunk lid was down, but presumed Mrs. Tait had closed it. She continued on to Victoria, where she spent the night with friends.

Meanwhile, Trilby was missing. Mrs. Tait had police and SPCA officials searching the flats and marshes of Somenos Lake Tuesday and Wednesday.

It went on until Wednesday noon, when Mrs. Grumbach reported that Trilby—quiet and well behaved—had been found in her car trunk. There had not been a whimper in almost 24 hours.

She now is safely at home.

SOLUTION MONDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas of Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to David Copp, aged 13, of Metamora, Ill., for his question:

How Often Do We Get Total Lunar Eclipse?

An eclipse of the moon performs for a very large audience, for it may be seen from a little more than half our globe. From start to finish, the strange spectacle may last almost four hours. The total phase, when the moon is completely veiled by the earth's shadow, may last almost two hours. The total phase of the lunar eclipse last Aug. 26, however, lasted only 14 minutes. But if the night sky is clear Dec. 30, 1963, we can watch a lunar eclipse having a total phase lasting one hour and 24 minutes.

Since 1956, six total lunar eclipses have been visible over most of North America. We are promised none for next year, but we can expect one in 1963 and two in 1964. There may be one, two, rarely three, and sometimes no eclipses at all of the moon during a year. Some will be total eclipses and some partial eclipses in which the moon is only partially veiled by the earth's shadow. Some will be penumbral eclipses in which the paler outer shadow of the earth falls upon part of the moon.

The dark shadow of the earth, called the umbra, is a tapering finger pointing some 900,000 miles out into space away from the sun. Around it, a lighter shadow called the penumbra fans outwards. When the orbitting moon comes completely inside the umbra, it is totally eclipsed. One would expect this dark shadow to blot out the moon, but this does not happen. Sunlight filtering through the earth's surrounding atmosphere casts a soft glow and we see the face of the moon as a dull, coppery disk.

Circle 5,700 Miles Wide

The moon's average distance from the earth is 235,000 miles and at this distance the earth's tapering umbra casts a dark circle 5,700 miles wide. This is more than twice the diameter of the moon. When the moon is full, we are between it and the sun. This is the time when the umbra points towards the orbiting moon, the only time we can have a lunar eclipse. It is natural to wonder why the moon does not pass into the huge umbra on every trip around the earth, giving us a lunar eclipse with every full moon.

This does not happen because of variations in the position of the sun, the earth and the moon. The distance between the earth and the sun varies by some three million miles and this makes differences in the size and shape of the earth's shadow. The distance between the earth and the moon varies by some 31,000 miles. The moon may cross through the tapering shadow where it is narrowest and be only partly eclipsed. Most important, the moon's orbit is far from regular. It tips up or down, usually taking the moon above or below the shadow of the earth.

With all these irregularities, there is nevertheless a fairly orderly cycle of eclipses which repeats after 18 years and 11 days. This period is the Saros, discovered by stargazers of ancient Mesopotamia. In each Saros, there are 29 lunar eclipses in which the moon passes partly or completely into the tapering shadow of the earth's umbra.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Linda Ann Johnson, age 10, of Richmond, Va., for her question:

Can an ostrich fly?

The ostrich is the biggest and the heaviest bird in the world and his small wings are almost useless. He could not fly, even if he wanted to do so. But this does not bother him at all. He is quite happy to stay on the ground of his native Africa, even when there are hungry lions around.

The big bird stands maybe eight feet tall and his sharp eyes can spot trouble coming from afar. He can outrun his enemies with giant strides and, when cornered, can use his mighty legs to kick like a mule.

Interim Payment

OTTAWA (CP)—An interim payment by the Canadian wheat board of 10 cents a bushel on Prairie wheat in the 1960-61 wheat pool was announced Thursday by Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton. NEW YORK—George Gobel's stay-with-it campaign to convince the public he has a hilarious B'way show for it to see is paying off "and it now appears that 'Let It Ride' may have a good ride . . ."

Gentleman Georgie Solotaire, the ticket broker who seldom misses in a forecast, thinks "Let It Ride" could soon be riding high. One reason is that "How to Succeed" has succeeded so smashingly. Some customers unable to get "Succeed" tickets are going to Gobel's show (with Sam Levene, Barbara Nichols and Paula Stewart) and loving it.

There's increasing talk about Johnny Carson taking over "Tonight" when Jack Paar leaves. B'way respects Johnny for his ad-libbing. Someone explains in "How to Succeed" that ingenuity is important to success: "A man named Gatling invented the machine gun—but it took someone with ingenuity to turn it into 'The Untouchables'." That's earl, brother.

LOOTING BROKE OUT in the business district of devastated Belize, British Honduras, after Hurricane Hattie passed, leaving 15,000 homeless and 75 per cent of all buildings destroyed or damaged. Soldiers were brought in from Jamaica to maintain order.

Ruined Capital To Move Inland

BELIZE (AP)—Twice destroyed by hurricanes in 30 years, this capital of British Honduras will be moved inland 44 miles from the exposed Caribbean coast to higher ground.

The government announcement came as the known death toll from hurricane Hattie rose to 151, and many more bodies were feared buried in the mud and wreckage left by the storm Tuesday.

The rising Belize River threatened floods in the city of 30,000, which bore the brunt of the 200-mile-an-hour winds and tidal waves that crashed in from the Caribbean.

Belize counted 62 dead. An estimated 75 per cent of the buildings in the capital were destroyed or damaged. The property devastation was greater than the 1931 hurricane that levelled the city and killed more than 2,000 persons.

There were 38 dead reported in Stann Creek, one at Gale's Point, 29 on Turneffe and 14 on Cay Caulker. The latter two are small islands off the coast.

Five persons were reported killed in neighboring Guatemala and two in Honduras.

British troops were flown from Jamaica to help guard against looting as the clearing of the debris went slowly, mostly by hand.

"When we are able to remove the debris from the streets, I fear many more bodies will be found," said Prime Minister George Price. "We are waiting for heavy equipment."

Raymond Yates, a waiter at the Fort George Hotel, told of the horror on hurricane night.

"I swam nine blocks right through the streets," he said. "On the way I found two bodies. I put them on a high place, where it was dry, and continued to swim. I came across a woman with two children. I helped the mother to safety, and swam the children to a dry place."

Evacuation of the thousands of homeless moved slowly. A shortage of gasoline contributed to transport difficulties. Special food dispensaries gave out rice to the destitute.

Relief supplies continued to pour in from abroad.

UNUSUAL JUDGMENT

Wife Gets Balm For Lost Hubby

VANCOUVER (CP)—A housewife who claims she lost her $19,000-a-year department store executive husband to another woman will receive damages in an unusual Supreme Court alienation of affections action.

Mr. Justice F. K. Collins said Thursday damages would be awarded Mrs. Genevieve Edwina Judge, formerly of Edmonton, against Mrs. Marie Isabelle Smith, in a written judgment to be delivered later.

Mrs. Judge, in the uncontested action, claimed she had been reduced to the status of a lonely, hard-pressed woman, about to lose her home for non-payment of mortgage arrears.

She said her husband and Mrs. Smith obtained Idaho state divorces from their respective spouses and remarried in that state. She sought damages for enticement of her husband and alienation of his affection.

Married in Edmonton in 1930, Mrs. Judge came to Vancouver with her husband in 1949. They had two children, both of whom are now married.

ONLY INCOME

The family home, in her husband's name, is about to be foreclosed for $9,000 mortgage arrears, she said. Her only income is a monthly cheque for $128 from her husband.

Mrs. Judge told of a telephone call after her husband's Idaho marriage to Mrs. Smith. "I could hear her coaching him in the background, saying, 'Tell her to get out and work.'"

The woman said on a visit to her, the pair entered the home and Mrs. Smith walked to a photo of Mr. Judge saying: "What is this doing here? He is my husband."

"Mrs. Smith dangled the keys of our car in front of me and said the car was hers as well as the house and also said that they were not going to pay the mortgage on the house and that I would have to get out."

HAD A BALL

The witness said Mrs. Smith told her of the money they had spent on the Idaho trip. "We had a ball," Mrs. Judge quoted Mrs. Smith as saying. "Look at my tan."

Mrs. Judge continued: "They walked out holding hands, and when they got into the car she was practically sitting on his lap."

Commented Mr. Justice Collins: "Before she is finished, she will probably be standing on his neck.

"Mrs. Smith has hurt Mrs. Judge in every way one woman could hurt another.

"From being the wife of a husband whose earnings were nearly $19,000 a year, she has been reduced to a woman with comparatively nothing."

3 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

CALGARY (CP) — Three children died early today when fire swept through their home in Bowness, a town on the northwest outskirts of Calgary.

Their father was able to save his wife and five other children.

All were in hospital today and none was believed in serious condition.

Dead are Doris Cox, 15, and her brothers Ronald, 13, and James, 10.

In hospital are Mrs. Raymond Cox, Robert, 11, Larry, 9, Harry 8, Bruce 7 Wally 18 months.

A furnace explosion is believed to have started the fire while the family was asleep. Mr. Cox managed to carry the baby from the rented house to a neighboring house where the alarm was turned in.

Detective Dismissed

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Det. Sgt. Donald Macdonald, chief of the Vancouver police gambling squad, was fired Thursday after a secret trial.

Macdonald, on the police force for 26 years, announced his own dismissal. Police Chief George Archer, who fired him, and Deputy Chief Gordon Ambrose, who prosecuted Macdonald at the trial, declined to comment on grounds the matter was a "domestic one."

The firing came after a day-and-a-half of secret hearings on eight charges of breaking the police disciplinary code.

THE ONLY MAN I EVER CARED FOR

He Loved... and Died for Me

VANCOUVER — "He loved me so much he was willing to die for me."

Red-haired Dawn Adams, convicted bawdy house keeper, used those words Wednesday to describe her 34-year-old lawyer husband, Edward Rogers, who took an overdose of sleeping pills after unsuccessfully defending her on the charge in a Victoria court.

Padding around her apartment in black leotards and stroking a Siamese cat, Mrs. Rogers — charged under her former name of Dawn Adams —said her husband had "kinky moods."

She said a few weeks ago he went to the police after trying to kill her. He told them she was wanted in Victoria for skipping bail on a two-year-old bawdy house charge. That night he had cut up $1,000 worth of her clothes with a razor blade, later saying he didn't remember.

"I knew he was in one of his kinky moods," she said.

After her husband's suicide death she was given a suspended sentence on the bawdy house charge and fined $300 for skipping bail.

Mrs. Rogers said she will scatter her husband's ashes over English Bay.

"He died for me, not because of me," she said. "You don't know how I loved him. He was the first man I really loved. He loved me so much he was willing to sacrifice his life for me.

"Our happiest memories were swimming, skiing and picnicking at the sea. The least I can do is put him to rest in the waters he loved so well.

"They say I am a call girl. I cannot live with that name. I am a good girl. I was a good wife."

She may go back to her native England to forget.

"Society is forcing me to leave," she said, disclosing she had been given 30 days to vacate her west-end apartment.

FEEL YOUNG AGAIN

By LELORD KORDEL

Those Wrinkles Come From Short-Changing

Kordel

...AND SHE'S OLDER THAN YOU ARE!

Lisa Fonssagrives recently disclosed her age and the secret of her beauty. A top professional model, Lisa admitted to being well over 40—yet you can't believe she is a day more than 25!

More than anyone else, Lisa feels she can't afford to short-change her body of the essential proteins, vitamins, minerals.

She does not want her skin to pay with sagging tissues and the resulting wrinkles.

No amount of make-up can hide a starved skin—and Lisa knows this.

Depends on Proteins

High-protein breakfasts start Lisa on her busy days as model and mother.

Snacks of buttermilk refresh her during the day.

Lisa depends on proteins to give her the vitality and speed of youth.

Beauty is more than skin deep in this famous woman's opinion. It is the reflection of optimum health maintained by a nourishing diet.

Famous women who maintain their youth and vitality after their fortieth birthday are many: Ginger Rogers, Vivien Leigh, Mary Martin, Joan Crawford, Lucille Ball, to mention a few.

Foods to Avoid

Your revitalizing can begin with a high-protein vitamin, and mineral diet that includes all the foods with the EXCEPTION of bread and butter, cake, candy, cereals, chocolate, crackers, cream, custard, gravy, ice cream, jellies, jams, noodles, processed oils for cooking, rice, pastries, potatoes, pudding, sugar and spaghetti.

Cut out these 21 fatteners, and you can lose as much as 20 pounds of fat in 30 days without exposing yourself to wrinkles.

Many a woman of 30 who for years punished her body with inadequate nutrition, wakes up to find she has lost her youth! Her hair turned grey. Wrinkles that creams and packs are unable to erase.

The average person of middle age — and many younger people exist on a diet woefully deficient on almost every nutritious count (proteins, minerals, vitamins), unless a conscious effort is made for planned diet.

Loss of Vitality

Small wonder, that good looks and charm are so rare past 40.

And small wonder that this early loss of vitality and youthful appearance is particularly true of men, since they need even greater amounts of the B-vitamins (paramount factors in helping your youth stay on the job) than women.

Yet how many men at this critical period of life make a conscious effort to guard against losing the sensations and appearances of youth in the only sure way—through a planned diet? Too few, I'm afraid.

All too often the convert to a planned diet is the woman of the family, and her efforts to make friend husband realize the dietary facts behind his loss of energy and youthful appearance meet with indifference, if not open derision.

Men Vain Too

And yet men are as vain of their good looks and youthful attractions as are women.

They may not admit that their appearance matters as much to their happiness as it does to a woman.

But I, as one of the "stronger sex," will admit it for them. We men do care—and how—when the signs of age begin to sneak up on us.

In the preceding articles I have dwelt at length on the paramount need in every diet for plenty of protein—meat, fish, fowl, eggs, non-fat cheese, skim milk and seed cereals.

But I have saved until now the full story of the youth-bestowing B-vitamins because they enter so frequently into any mention of "diet and good looks."

Tops in Diet Aid

All the youth-preserving members of the B-complex family are found in varying degrees in meats, fish, fowl, eggs, skim milk, non-fat cheese, green vegetables, legumes, whole grains, berries, melons and fresh fruits.

Wheat germ (the raw variety found mostly in health food stores) is another good source of the B-vitamins.

Are you UNDERfed or MISfed? People who live continuously on diets poor in proteins, able to stand the stresses and vitamins and minerals are not strains of daily living.

A famous doctor of the Hollywood stars said recently: "Motion picture stars are the healthiest people in the world. Even the old ones are vigorous, firm and pink-cheeked. They eat the best food—and less of it!—than anyone else."

Next: A longer, more youthful life.

600-MILE SPACE HOP SET FOR U.S. MONKEY

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A six-pound Rhesus monkey with biomedical sensors implanted in its body will be rocketed 600 miles into space aboard an Atlas missile next week, it was learned Thursday night.

LUTHULI FREE TO COLLECT NOBEL PRIZE

PRETORIA (AP)—The South African government today granted Zulu leader Albert John Luthuli a passport so he can go to Oslo to collect the 1960 Nobel Peace Prize awarded him for his fight against the government's racial segregation policy.

The government said Luthuli would be granted 10 days for his trip. This means he will not be able to accept any of the numerous speaking offers he has had from Britain and the United States.

The government previously spoke disparagingly of the Nobel award to Luthuli and there had been considerable speculation that he would be refused a passport.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1961—PAGE 17

LIVING MEMORIAL to war dead is shown in top picture—Plane trees, a species of Sycamore, lining outer section of Shelbourne Street. Inset is Albert Horner, who took part in first dedication ceremonies of the memorial and will take part in rededication on Remembrance Day a week Saturday. (Times Photos).

History Repeats for Oldtimer On Unfinished 'Dream Street'

Forty-two years ago, when he was 43 years old, a Victoria landscape gardener assisted Premier Simon Tolmie in the planting of an oak tree at the official opening of Shelbourne War Memorial Park, now known as Memorial Gore, near Cedar Hill Cross Road.

On Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, the same man, Albert E. Horner, now 85, will plant an eastern maple tree at a rededication ceremony for the park and Shelbourne Street to commemorate the dead of two world wars and the Korean war.

"It is a strange case of history repeating itself," said Mr. Horner, who lives at 1729 Kisber. "I can remember the first ceremony as if it were yesterday. Old Premier Tolmie was wearing a tall hat and all the city's dignitaries were there.

"The date was July 19, 1919."

The Nov. 11 ceremony will mark another milestone in the history and preservation of Shelbourne Street as a living war memorial.

It has been called The Street of Unfinished Dreams.

FRENCH TYPE

Original plans called for development of a tree-lined French-type avenue from Mount Douglas to Rockland Avenue. But the tree-planting never got beyond Cedar Hill Cross Road, and the street ended insignificantly against a board fence on Denman Street.

"Failure to follow through with these plans robbed Greater Victoria of a beautiful grand boulevard," Mr. Horner said.

The idea of making Shelbourne a memorial avenue was conceived by the city council and Victoria Chamber of Commerce in November, 1918. But it did not take root until after the opening of Memorial Gore in 1919.

It was decided to plant trees all along the avenue and to improve and extend it from year to year as far as Rockland Avenue. But it was not until Oct. 2, 1921, that the first Remembrance Tree was planted on Shelbourne.

5,000 ATTENDED

On that day more than 5,000 travelled out to the Mount Douglas end of the road to see Lieutenant-Governor Walter C. Nicol plant the tree.

For the next few years the tree-planting on Memorial Avenue was a "must" for any prominent visitor.

These included Baron Byng of Vimy and Lady Byng, Sir Arthur Currie, General Joseph Joffre of France and Marshal Ferdinand Foch, supreme commander of Allied forces in France.

There is even a tree planted by Marshal Henri Petain who rose to fame in the First World War but lost prestige in the Second.

In all about 350 trees were planted from Mount Douglas to Cedar Hill Cross Road. Many of the trees were protected by circular wrought-iron railings, with plaques attached. Of these only two remain.

MANY PLEAS

Interest in Shelbourne Street began to wane when a memorial cenotaph was planned for the grounds of the Legislative Buildings. During the early 30s frequent pleas were made for completion of the avenue. But they got nowhere.

Finally, in 1935, the city decided that Memorial Avenue should consist of that portion of Shelbourne Street north of Cedar Hill Cross Road. The Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee was made responsible for its upkeep.

So ended the original plan for Shelbourne.

MONTE ROBERTS

The editorial page of this newspaper, which is forever coming up with interesting facts and even more interesting interpretations of same, has been digging into the question of age.

Is a man past 40 too old, asks the editorial page.

In reply, the editorial page points to the ages of world leaders, the boy prodigy amongst whom is President Kennedy of the United States of America.

And even he is 44, an age considered close to senility by what we laughingly call the younger generation.

As for the rest of the world leaders, the editorial page points out they are indeed senior citizens.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain is 67, and so is Nikita Khrusnchev. President Charles de Gaulle of France is 71, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany is 85, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek 74, and Mao Tse-tung 68.

The editorial page appears to interpret these facts as encouraging to doddling old codgers like me, to whom 40 is a figure to be achieved only on a speedometer, and not very often, at that.

At first glance it does seem rather cheering to realize six of the world's greatest men have a combined age of 432, and average out at a ripe 72.

But on sober reflection, what have these emininent elders been doing lately?

They have been getting the world into a pretty pickle, that's what they have been doing.

One of these days, the younger generation is going to wake up to what their ancient leaders are doing and—pow! Comes the revolution.

Let's try an average age of, say, 30, among world leaders, and let oldsters like me confine our interest in world affairs to reading about them in the paper.

$20,000 Yearly For New B.C. Trade Post

B.C.'s new external trade commissioner, Maj.-Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister, is being paid $20,000 a year in salary and expenses.

At that time salary details were not announced.

A cabinet order today gives him $10,500 a year in salary plus a "representational allowance" of $9,500 a year.

Gen. Hoffmeister is temporarily working in Victoria, but the trade department plans to give him an office in Vancouver.

VERY FEW COHOES

Small Run at Goldstream Expected Later in Month

Sightseers will have to wait until after Remembrance Day to see the annual spawning migration of salmon in Goldstream, fisheries officials said today.

They will be in their greatest numbers in the last two weeks of November, he said.

There are a "very, very few" cohoes in the stream at present, and although there are chums in Saanich Inlet, they have not yet made their way into the fresh water.

Chums, or dog salmon, form the bulk of the Goldstream run, and traditionally are late in spawning.

Fisheries spokesmen fear the run this year will be small at best, since the fish are the return cycle of 1957, which was small.

PEARSON MAKES HEADWAY

Police and parents hope a co-ordinated approach to juvenile troubles will reap peaceful dividends in the Gordon Head area, Saanich Chief W. A. Pearson said today.

The move came after a Halloween incident which saw an unruly group of 50 to 60 youths run through the Gordon Head area shouting taunts, trampling gardens and frightening residents.

When police were called their cruisers were stoned by the arrogant youths in an hour-long running battle. One car was damaged.

At one point in the affair, a teacher in the area was threatened with a beating if he didn't go back into his house and "mind his own business."

The new approach was given its first test in the Gordon Head Community Hall Thursday night when parents and children faced Chief Pearson and juvenile officer Harry Adams.

Worthwhile Meeting

"I think we accomplished quite a bit with the parents, and not so much with the kids themselves, except for a few," Mr. Pearson said today.

"We got the names of many of the gang,' said the chief, "and could have gone around to their schools and homes and rounded them up.

"But we felt rather than do this we should hold a meeting with police, parents, and the teenagers themselves to thrash it all out and make everyone aware of the consequences of such acts."

The chief pointed out, however, that this friendly method did not mean charges will not be laid.

Stern Lecture

The meeting saw a total of 50 parents and teenagers present.

Chief Pearson delivered a stern lecture outlining the charges that could be laid under the Criminal Code.

He told the teenagers they can't count on protection because they are juveniles. Any person over fourteen may be tried in open court, he said.

The hall was silent as Mr. Pearson delivered his message and his words took effect on the parents.

"One parent here had a big chip on his shoulder when he came," the chief said, "but after the meeting he came up to me and said he was convinced that police and parents must work hand in hand."

Mr. Pearson told the Times today he wants parents to rely on the police and not fear them.

"I want parents to call us when they cannot handle a situation," the chief said, "I think they will now."

Angry Retorts

The youths present listened calmly to the chief but yelled angry retorts to Juvenile Officer Adams when he began to talk.

They directed their anger at newspaper and radio reports which, they said, described them as thugs and hoodlums.

Mr. Adams said, if anything, press reports leaned on the mild side of the actual events.

When he described the night's deeds many of the youths broke into laughter.

They buttoned up sharply, however, when Mr. Adams said he intended to proceed with the investigation, and would treat them as individuals, not as a group.

The youths were then asked to leave the room so that parents could question the two police officers.

The chief told the parents that Tuesday's antics seemed to be the result of "growing conformity" on the part of youngsters who feared "acting as individuals."

'Intimidated'

"It is my opinion," Mr. Pearson said, "the whole affair was started by eight or ten known troublemakers in the area, and the rest were intimidated into going along."

The chief admitted that from actions of most of the teenagers at the meeting they still thought of the whole evening as some sort of hilarious joke.

"The conception of right or wrong seems beyond the scope of many of them," he said.

Trial Run Plan On Parking Lots

Test Demand Before Going Ahead

Mayor Percy Scurrah said today the city will consider testing out the proposed downtown parking locations before erecting multi-deck parking garages.

His comment came after the provincial cabinet gave its approval to a $1,115,000 debenture issue to finance the project previously approved by downtown ratepayers.

Mayor Scurrah said a prominent businessman suggested the city acquire the two proposed sites, pull down existing buildings and create surface parking lots to test the demand before erecting the buildings.

"I think it's a good suggestion and it certainly will be considered," he said. "We don't want to make any mistakes.

BACK UP THEORIES

"We all know that off-street parking space is needed but this kind of test could back up the theories with actual experience and ensure the timing is correct.

"We wouldn't want to erect the buildings too far in advance of their economic use although we do expect to lose money on operations for the first year or two," he said.

Negotiations already have begun for two specific sites recommended by an advisory citizens' committee.

The sites have not been pinpointed but are on View, between Blanshard and Douglas, and in the area bounded by Langley, Fort, Government and Yates.

The original plan called for erection of a 400-car garage on the View Street site and a 200-car garage on the other site.

Fallout Fears Fading

The fallout cloud from Russia's 50-plus megaton bomb blast Monday appeared to be passing to the north of Victoria today.

Radiation readings to be taken at the Pacific Naval Laboratory Saturday morning are expected to confirm this.

A test of several thousand cubic feet of air at 9 a.m. today showed the level of radiation was at about average for the period since Russia resumed testing about a month ago.

Weather officials at Vancouver said they expected the cloud to pass just north of the mainland city.

FAST MOVING

The cloud, in a 150-mile band, is travelling at 60 to 65 miles an hour at a height of about 30,000 feet. It was expected to reach Alberta late today.

Robert List, head of the U.S. Weather Bureau atmospheric radioactivity research project in Washington, D.C., said in a telephone interview he exepected the cloud to go inland over Powell River, about 100 miles northwest of Vancouver, and along a line at 50 degrees latitude.

Long Run In Ambulance 'Pays Off'

A harrowing 175-mile ambulance run from Campbell River to Victoria Thursday "paid off" for 37-year-old William Gibbons, formerly of Victoria, who suffered head injuries in a sport car crash at the up-Island community Thursday afternoon.

He was operated on Thursday night at St. Joseph's Hospital for a depressed skull fracture, and today was reported by hospital authorities to be "responding well and in satisfactory condition."

Gibbons was injured when his car went out of control and landed upside down in the forecourt at Campbell River municipal hall.

BAD WEATHER

He was brought to Victoria by ambulance driver Douglas Robinson, who reported rain, sleet, and high wind for most of his trip.

He said he was able to average from 50 to 60 miles per hour, and that other drivers on the road co-operated by keeping clear.

Only confusion was at Victoria when he went to Royal Jubilee Hospital, not knowing that the hospital was full and that arrangements had been made to take the patient at St. Joseph's. He made his way unescorted to the other hospital.

Driver Uninjured As 'Lid-Flipper' Rams Into Pole

In an unusual accident early today the canvas top of an old model convertible blew off causing the driver to lose control.

Robert Cartwright, 3028 Jutland, was uninjured when his car left the Trans-Canada Highway at Burnside in Saanich and hit a light pole and guard rail about 12.25 a.m.

He was driving east when there were "two loud thumps" and the top blew off. The 1952 car was described as a total wreck and about $100 damage was done to the pole and rail.

Foulkes to Speak On November 13

General Charles Foulkes, former Chief of General Staff, will address a joint meeting of the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs in the Empress Hotel on Monday, Nov. 13, at 12.15 p.m.

CAPT. T. G. HARRIS

Flat-Top Expecting Big Crowds

Sharp-eyed watchers along Victoria's waterfront had a preview glimpse of the United States Navy's amphibious assault ship USS Iwo Jima, due to dock at Esquimalt Saturday for a two-day visit.

She arrived off Port Angeles across Juan de Fuca Strait this morning, and could be seen standing on and off the south shore of the strait.

The 18,000-ton helicopter carrier is to pick up pilot off William Head at 8.30 a.m. Saturday, and to dock at 9 a.m. Canadian military and HMC Dockyard civilian personnel will be invited to tour the ship Saturday afternoon.

Her commanding officer, Capt. T. D. Harris, has indicated he hopes a record crowd will accept the open invitation to visit the ship between 1 and 5 p.m. Sunday. She will be berthed at HMCS Naden, reached through the main gate on Admirals Road.

Go-Ahead Given On Jubilee Wing

Work probably will begin within the next two weeks on Royal Jubilee Hospital's new $2,623,000 wing.

"I've been waiting for this the past seven years," hospital administrator George Masters said happily today.

Action, following almost two years of delay, is expected speedily on the heels of an announcement late Thursday that the provincial government has given approval for award of the contract to a Vancouver firm which entered the lowest bid.

A spokesman for the company, Burns and Dutton Concrete and Construction Company Ltd., said this morning official notification had not been received but he expected work would be underway in two weeks.

FENCE OFF SITE

First job is to erect a wooden fence around the project site.

This will be followed by drillers, power shovels and dynamite crews as initial work requires removal of 4,000 yards of rock to clear the site for the five-storey L-shaped wing.

The structure will be added to the main building, with the long arm of the wing stretching towards the maternity building and the short arm jutting outward on the site of the old red brick administration building which was demolished earlier this year.

The new wing will accommodate 195 beds on three floors, with space for 31 of these left in a partially-finished state.

SPECIAL SURGERY

Top floor will be devoted to surgery, providing 10 operating rooms including special facilities for cardiac and neuro-surgery and areas for accommodating patients before and after operations.

Also included in the wing will be a large radio-therapy department with a cobalt bomb and a modern radiological suite of seven rooms.

A special firing of 250,000 bricks, no longer in use, has been arranged to match the brickwork in the present building erected in 1926.

"However, this will not cost us anything extra," said Mr. Masters. "I think the total cost of the brickwork, installed, will be approximately $50,000.

The entire project, expected to take about 16 months to completion, "couldn't come at a better time" in view of rising unemployment in the construction industry, said Ald. A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of Victoria Labor Council.

Health Minister Eric Martin said the contractor has agreed to hire local tradesmen provided that competent and qualified men are available.

LONG AWAITED

Award of the contract ends numerous delays that triggered several rounds of criticism against both the hospital's board and the provincial government.

Originally, construction was slated to start in the summer of 1959 following a successful community fund drive that raised about $500,000 to meet the gap left by government grants.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Could you please tell me the period in which the Earl of Ellensburgh or Ellenmere was Viceroy of India? E.A.B.

A. Edward Law, 2nd Baron Ellenborough, was appointed by the court of directors of the East India Company to succeed Lord Auckland as governor-general of India in 1841. The whole term of his office, which lasted until his recall by the directors of the company in 1844 due to his independent policy, was taken up by the rising of the amirs of Sind, culminating in the annexation of that territory through the military campaigns of Sir Charles Napier. On his return to England, Ellenborough was created an earl. His suggestions for governmental reform of India, abolishing the executive power of the East India Company in that country, were later adopted by Lord Stanley in the 1858 "constitution."

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

For New Dinner Treat Try Turkey 'n' Gravy

By PENNY SAVER

Hello again, Sis:

I've been in a flap lately, trying to make a limited food budget go a long way.

You having the same problem? Well, turkey necks at 25 cents a pound can be made into several delicious dishes. They can be barbecued, done up in turkey pie or boiled, the stock and meat being used for soup.

Another interesting item — hope you're a real turkey lover — is young turkey wings. They sell for 45 cents a pound. If you're still a pushover for something fried, the wings can be done that way. However, if you're on that long promised diet, prepare a medium oven, pop the wings in for 15 to 20 minutes, and sure as anything, you'll smack your lips in anticipation.

Remember how I used to labor over gravy? I could never get it just right and without lumps. I still can't!

No one will ever know, though. A leading brand name is now producing the most delicious tinned gravy. In ten-and-one-quarter-ounce tins; beef gravy 19 cents; chicken gravy two tins for 39 cents and beef gravy with mushrooms 32 cents a tin. You simply heat in a saucepan and serve.

Call me, Sis, if you're still interested in good eats and your food budget is creeping up on you.

Penny, EV 2-3131.

THE BETTER HALF

Charter Member Honored

Mrs. Sarah McMartin, only remaining charter member of the Soroptimist Club of Greater Victoria, was honored at the club's November dinner meeting, with a life membership. Mrs. McMartin was a member of the group to whom the charter was presented on May 20, 1932, and has been actively connected with the club since.

A corsage of yellow roses, tied with blue ribbon, club colors, was also presented.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Mrs. Phyllis Graveley who described work of the United Nations in the Status of Women Commission and in the Food and Agriculture Organization. Miss Hilda Hesson introduced the speaker and Mrs. O. M. Prentice thanked her.

Dinner hostess was Miss Muriel Vincent. Special guests included Mrs. Margaret Dyker, Misses Muriel Campbell, Ruth Hesson and Florence Smith.

In Tradition of 'Ould Land'

Irish tradition was observed when Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth James Thorne walked down the aisle of St. Andrew's Church, Sidney, after their marriage. Pausing momentarily, they accepted a small Irish silver horseshoe from tiny Sandra John as a good luck talisman.

Bride, the former Fredericka Storey, is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Storey and her groom is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Thorne, all of Sidney.

Double-ring ceremony was performed by Canon F. Vaughan-Birch. Miss Cathie Douma sang "O Perfect Love" during signing of the register and music was played by Mrs. E. A. Richardson.

Hand-clipped French lace, embroidered with pearls and sequins, accented the deep rounded neckline, brief sleeves and full bouffant skirt of gown worn by the bride. It was fashioned of silk organza over nylon tulle with a taffeta lining and a hoop skirt that was slightly en train. A dainty coronet of rhinestone studded leaves held the nylon tulle veil that, shoulder length at front, misted to floor length at back. Red roses and white heather were in the bouquet. She was given in marriage by her father.

Bell-skirted gowns of crimson faille taffeta were chosen by matron of honor, Mrs. T. Jarvie, and bridesmaid, Miss Valerie East. Crimson crystal taffeta formed the bouffant-skirted gown worn by junior bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Storey, sister of the bride. All carried bouquets of white carnations and had white ribbon pill box hats, edged with tiny veils.

Duncan Gurton was best man and ushering were Barry Bennett and Tom Robinson.

Autumn-toned chrysanthemums decorated Sanscha Hall for a reception which 175 guests attended. Bride's table, centred with a three-tier wedding cake, was decorated with red roses and white chrysanthemums.

Frank Spear was master of ceremonies and T. L. Clarke proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving on a honeymoon motoring trip to California, the new Mrs. Thorne donned a sapphire blue sheath dress topped with a coat in blue and beige tones.

Beige marabou hat and brown accessories completed her ensemble.

Newlyweds will make their new home on Weller Avenue in Sidney.

HOW TO STOP LOOKING OLDER THAN YOUR BIRTHDAYS

What makes a woman's face age prematurely—with crow's feet, little lines, roughness? The answer is skin dryout, a condition caused by harsh weather, overheated rooms, low-fat diets, etc. If this is your problem, you need POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM. This famous cream, now with Allantoin, starts to repair dry skin in just 10 minutes! Allantoin floats off lifeless surface skin cells, opens the way for swift penetration of Pond's rich moisturized lanolin to thirsty tissues far below. Almost overnight, your skin takes on new tone, looks smoother, softer and younger. Pond's special formula will re-moisturize, revitalize even the driest complexion. Get POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM . . . use it regularly. In jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold. Advt.

Residents in Mt. St. Mary, including from the left, Mrs. Nora Gagnon, Mrs. E. Sparling, Miss K. Townsley and Mrs. Marie Robitaille, have been busy making attractive articles for a stall at the annual bazaar to be held in the private hospital, 999 Burdett Street, on Wednesday from 1 to 5 p.m. Afternoon tea will be served and stalls will include home cooking, needlework, candy, novelties and contests.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

What to Do AFTER Baby Comes? Get Abdominal Muscles Back in Shape

Q. "I am 22 years old, 5 feet, 5½ inches tall. I weigh 134 pounds. I don't consider myself overweight, but since the birth of my baby I have had a prominent abdomen and my waist is larger. My present measurements are, bust 34 inches, waist 29 and hips 36½. Is this problem usual after childbirth? I am sure that your answer will be helpful to many."

Lowman

A. This is a very usual problem after having a baby, but it need not be permanent. Your abdominal muscles have taken a stretching, but abdominal exercises will get them back into shape. Your measurements are in good ratio except for your waist. Lax abdominal muscles increase the waistline measurement.

You did not tell me how old your baby is, but as soon as your physician says that it is safe for you to exercise, concentrate on abdominal exercises. If you or any of my readers would like to have my exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 2. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Q. "Please answer as soon as possible in your column. Will using a depilatory on my face increase the growth of hair? I have used one several times to remove unsightly hair, and it seems to me that the hair has grown in thicker. I hesitate to use a depilatory again. Please let me know what to do."

A. So far as I know, there is no reason why the use of a depilatory would increase the growth of hair on your face. It is probably a question of age and glandular setup.

Q. "Can flat feet make my legs ache?"

A. Yes, definitely! Try exercises regularly which will strengthen your arches. If you really have flat feet, you may need more help. You may require arch supporters and shoes scientifically fitted to your feet. If any of my readers would like to have my exercises for the feet, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 14. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CHICKEN MARENGO

Four to 5-pound fowl, ¼ cup fat or cooking oil, 1 cup apple juice, 1 can (20 ounces) tomatoes, 1 clove garlic (finely chopped), 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 sprig tarragon, ½ pound mushrooms (sliced), 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ cup water, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Cut fowl in serving-size pieces and fry in hot fat until well browned. Remove from pan and place in a kettle. Add apple juice, tomatoes, garlic, salt, pepper and tarragon. Cover and simmer until fowl is tender, 2 to 3 hours, moving top pieces to bottom of kettle once during cooking. Drain fat from frying pan and measure back 2 tablespoons of the fat.

When fowl is almost tender, fry mushrooms until lightly browned. Drain broth from fowl and remove sprig of tarragon. Skim fat from broth. Blend flour with the ¼ cup water. Stir in some of the broth, blend well, then add to remaining broth.

Pour into kettle containing cooked fowl, add mushrooms and stir constantly until sauce has thickened. Cover and simmer 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Turn into serving dish and sprinkle with chopped parsley. Makes six servings.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Speechless!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago my husband started running around with another woman. He always wanted children, and I didn't, so, in order to hold him, I consented to take a little two-year-old boy to raise. Well, now I have my husband back, and I would like to get rid of this kid because his being here complicates things too much. I just don't have time to bother with him, as I work days. Please tell me how or where I can get rid of the boy. Thank you.

COMPLICATIONS.

DEAR COMPLICATIONS: Where did you get this? Did you legally adopt him, or did you simply agree to assume the responsibility of raising him? In any case, get in touch with your local social service agency and find out what legal procedures are involved. It is a pity that small humans are handed over like kittens to "hold a husband." Under the circumstances, I think the boy should have another home. He could hardly do worse.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: We know for sure that those who pray together, stay together. I wish I could say the same for those who eat together. Why is it that those who do not have store teeth are very inconsiderate of those who do? People who have their own teeth can chew and swallow in half the time it takes us folks with store teeth. I am tempted to say, "I can't eat as fast as you with these teeth, so please don't talk to me while I am eating." Can you tell me a nicer way to put it so folk won't think I'm a roughneck?"

STORE TEETH.

DEAR STORE TEETH: Properly fitted "store teeth" do the same for the wearer as his own teeth. There is no reason to suffer with teeth such as you describe. Go back to the dentist who made them for you and put the "bite" on him for a better fit.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and am practically the "man" of the house. My Dad is an alcoholic, and is "sick" almost every night. I do most of the chores because my Mom works. I know there is no answer to my problem, but please print it for those who have it good and don't know it.

LITTLE MAN.

DEAR LITLE MAN: There IS an "answer." And it's listed in your telephone directory under "A". If you can get your Dad to want to help himself, Alcoholics Anonymous can do a lot for him.

* * *

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Lewis Anderson with her younger daughter Frances, at their home on Locarno Drive, Gordon Head. Another daughter, Caroline, 17, who has been with friends in Comox, arrives today to join her mother. Son Bob, 19, now attending the university at Shantiniketan, near Calcutta in India, founded by Rabindranath Tagore, will return to Victoria in early spring and hopes to enter University of British Columbia next fall. Three-year-old Eric, asleep when the picture was taken, completes the family circle.

Family Here for Winter; Doctor With World Health Organization

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A year-and-half in India where her husband, Dr. Lewis Anderson, was a public health consultant with United Nations World Health Organization, and a slow trip back to Canada by boat with stopovers in Singapore, Hong Kong and Japan is all part of living for Mary Anderson.

Arriving in Victoria last week with two of the Anderson children, Frances, 13, and three-year-old Eric, she is now busy unpacking boxes and cases to furnish the Gordon Head home in which the family will live for the next few months.

TEMPORARY STOP

"It's going to be very informal," this well-travelled woman says. "When my husband joins us—we hope in the spring — we may be shot off somewhere else."

At present Dr. Anderson is in Africa where he was transferred by WHO — after a month's briefing in Geneva— as public health adviser to the Republic of the Congo.

"He'll be visiting many places out there," Mrs. Anderson says, "including Uganda, Tanganyika and Ghana. So, we wait for him here."

Both Dr. and Mrs. Anderson were born and educated in Scotland, the former specializing in preventative methods to combat disease and the latter in medical science and dietetics.

Following their marriage they spent three years in Kenya then came to British Columbia, first to Trail and then to Comox.

It was from Comox that the family left for Kerala in the south of India. Dr. Anderson worked with the government there.

CROWDED

"Kerala is only the size of Vancouver Island," Mrs. Anderson explained, "but I think it must be the most crowded place in the world. It has a population of 17 million, as great as that of Canada.

"The people are charming and gentle, but it is a ghastly climate and disease is rampant. Through World Health Organization much is being done to eradicate some of the troubles but it will take time . . . much time."

Kerala is known because of the fact that in 1951 it had a Communist government which the people ousted. Now there is a coalition government.

BAND TOGETHER

"The people stood much but when the Communists tried to take over the schools, all Christians banded together and they were ousted."

Women of India are slowly taking their place in the volunteer work of their country, Mrs. Anderson says, but "because of the caste system it's quite different to our way of doing it.

"Where we would volunteer and do it ourselves, they assist with the plans, oversee the development of them, but someone else, in a lower class, does the work."

While in India, Mrs. Anderson had an opportunity to visit and to learn much about the school for orphans at Trivandrum, the capital of Kerala, built with funds gathered by the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada and dispersed by Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova.

"Dr. Lotta is an amazing person and she is doing a wonderful work," she says, "you've no idea unless you see it for yourself just what the need is amongst these helpless children.

"I'm looking forward to seeing her again when she comes to Victoria in a few weeks."

Proceeds to Help Crippled Children

Hundreds braved the squally weather on Thursday afternoon to attend the annual bazaar and bridge-tea of Miriam Temple No. 2, Daughters of the Nile, in the K of P Hall. Sum of $875 was realized.

In her opening speech Mrs. M. Watson, Queen of Miriam Temple No. 2, explained that proceeds will be used for temple's work with Shriners' hospitals for crippled children. Last year, $2,000 was donated by the temple, $1,200 of this sum being for the relief fund for convalescent patients.

"This work covers the two Canadian hospitals at Winnipeg and Montreal as well as hospitals in Portland and other American cities," she said.

General convener, Mrs. Harvey Patterson, presented Mrs. Watson with pink carnations en corsage. Tea tickets were in charge of Mrs. Nick Addems.

Higher Wharfage Charges Face Pleasure Boat Owners

Pleasure boat owners soon may be called upon to pay a more equitable share of the cost of maintaining boat harbors on the B.C. coast, according to an announcement from the transport department in Ottawa.

One likely way of paying will be through higher wharfage charges, the department indicated.

The announcement said the tremendous growth of pleasure boating along the B.C. coast has created the need for a "satisfactory tariff."

WARNING

Department officials here said they did not know what to expect, but took the news release as "advance warning that something new is coming."

Certainly there is plenty of scope for the government to start collecting fees, but first it will have to appoint wharfingers to make the collections.

Here is a partial list of government wharf locations on Vancouver Island, all of which are used by pleasure boats:

Victoria (Fishermen's Wharf leased to the city), Saanichton, Sidney, Brentwood, Fulford, Ganges, Maple Bay, Chemainus, Cowichan Bay, Ladysmith, Nanoose, French Creek, Comox, Campbell River, Galiano, Mayne, Saturna, North and South Pender Islands, and many others.

CENT PER FOOT

At all of these wharves pleasure craft are required to pay one cent per foot per day for dockage.

However, there are wharfingers at only two or three of these locations, and if there is no one to collect the fee, then the dockage is, in effect, free.

In the southern half of B.C. there are close to 300 of these wharves, and almost all of the 77,000 pleasure craft now using B.C. coast harbor services make use of the moorings they provide at least once during the boating season.

It is understood the Ottawa announcement was made as a result of an exhaustive survey of fishing, small boat and pleasure craft facilities across Canada, conducted earlier this year by an influential interdepartmental committee.

Need for a change in the conduct of waterfront activities came with the pleasure boat boom which started 10 years ago, and has been most pronounced in the last five years. It is estimated that 8,000 new pleasure boats are licensed every year.

Probably the greatest need is for uniformity between charges for dockage. There is conflict between centres with mooring charges and those without, and between private operators and the public facilities, especially where the private float owners feel the government is giving them unfair competition.

There is no indication that the owners of marinas catering to pleasure boats or their customers will be affected.

ANNOUNCING HIS resignation from the U.S. Army today, Maj.-Gen. Edwin A. Walker said he will continue his anti-Communist fight as a civilian. Walker was relieved of his command of the U.S. 24th division in Germany and reprimanded because of complaints about his troop indoctrination program. In his resignation statement, the general defended his theory that soldiers must be instruted in Communist conspiratorial aims and methods and blasted the "power of little men who, in the name of my country, punish loyal service to it."

Farmers Support Takeover Of B.C. Electric, Peace R.

B.C. farmers Thursday unreservedly commended the Social Credit government for taking over the B.C. Electric and the Peace River power project.

The advisory board of the Farmers' Institutes also called for a rapid program of rural electrification.

In a brief to the cabinet, the board asked for pressure on the B.C. Power Commission to buy a large block of power from the East Kootenay Power Co. to serve rural areas.

"Failing this, we urge that the government purchase the East Kootenay Power Co. for the B.C. Power Commission," said the brief.

It was the first time in many years that the farmers had had a direct meeting with the government.

"We were very pleased with the hearing we got," said Everett Greenlee, of Lanim Lake in the Cariboo, board chairman.

He said the cabinet audience was granted because of the more favorable climate in the agriculture department since Frank Richter took over last year as minister. Former minister Newton P. Steacy repeatedly denied the farmers access to the legislature's agriculture committee or to the cabinet.

Mr. Greenlee said the cabinet would take the brief "under consideration." Although no specific promises were made, the farmers were satisfied with their hearing.

However, although the farmers hailed the Peace project and the takeover, they opposed the plan to build a High Arrow dam as part of the Columbia River project.

It would cause the loss of 40,000 acres of agricultural land, and also favor American farmers through improved downstream irrigation and flood control.

The farm brief also attacked the present system of social welfare assistance.

"The present method of distributing welfare funds is undermining the morale of both recipients of welfare payments as well as other members of the community," it said.

It asked the government to employ able-bodied men on welfare relief on provincial projects such as roads, parks, power and forest jobs.

2 B.C. Men Drown

TERRACE (CP) — RCMP Thursday identified two men drowned in the rain-swollen Cedar River as residents of the remote village of Aiyansh—Walter Grandison, 19, and Bertie Mercer, 24.

WE CAN CUT SEASONAL UNEMPLOYMENT

Something CAN be done about seasonal unemployment in Canada; it can be cut almost in half by following a simple formula developed in Sweden, says veteran Ottawa correspondent Michael Barkway in the current issue of The Star Weekly. Four out of ten men caught in winter lay-offs are construction workers who could be kept on the job if the Canadian government would follow the Swede's plan. Read this interesting article in this week's Star Weekly.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

North's five-spade bid is rather unusual, but so is his hand. I am not going to criticize the bid one way or the other because there is no scientific way to bid such freak hands. Furthermore, North did not want to get scientific and tell his opponents what to lead. Actually, I would not object to an immediate six-spade bid by the North hand.

Opening lead—♥ Q

I happened to hold the South hand. The game was board-a-match team of four and needless to say my partner's bid gave me quite a problem.

I had a mighty good hand. So good that I would have made some sort of slam try if my partner had only jumped to three spades. It was also apparent to me that my partner held something along the order of his actual hand and that even a six-spade bid would go down one had my partner had a doubleton club and that suit were opened.

Against that I noted that there was no law that my partner had to be void of hearts—maybe hearts was his doubleton.

That left two things going for me. He could have that void and, if he didn't, the club might not be opened.

As long as I was going to gamble I went the whole hog and bid seven. West opened the queen of hearts and that was all, except that the bidding went the same way at the other table and our West made the same lead.

SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available—a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

With its "grow-in" work ability, weather resistance and lasting good looks, "Keystone" clear Western Red Cedar Siding has long been recognized as the standard of quality home construction.

It has a distinctive "shadow line" which enhances any architectural style in any setting, and is used to create a variety of interesting decorative effects on indoor surfaces as well as exterior.

"FOREST"
CEDAR SIDING

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?

Made of dry 1½" stock in 10 and 12-inch widths, "FOREST" siding is a new type of siding obtained from specially selected cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc.

APPEARANCE?

For homes and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired, enhanced by heavy shadow lines, Sound intergrown knots ranging in size from 2-inch in 6-inch widths to 4-inch in 12-inch widths add to the rustic appearance of the grade.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?

"FOREST" siding with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume, adds to the structural STRENGTH and solidity of the building.

The design of "FOREST" siding ensures a tight weather seal at the lap which together with its thickness and flush-to-base principle, makes excellent material from the INSULATION standpoint.

"FOREST" siding represents an ECONOMY to home - builders. Costing less than most other types of siding, the lap design ensures easy fitting and speedy application at less labor costs.

HOW IS IT APPLIED?

As easily and quickly as common shiplap. Each piece of "FOREST" siding fits snugly on the one below and requires only one mitre cut.

HOW CAN IT BE FINISHED?

If a natural finish is desired, use equal proportions of raw linseed oil and any well-known brand of waterproof sealer. This not only protects the wood surface, but also brings out the natural beauty of the knots and the grain. If a colored finish is desired "FOREST" siding can easily be painted. It is recommended that a sharp instrument be used to score the finished product underneath the butt (where it will not show) to stop formation of a vapor barrier.

OUTBOARD MOTOR
THIS MESSAGE IS OF VITAL IMPORTANCE
TO YOU!

Do you usually let your outboard sit in the garage or basement during the winter months with the intention of getting it tuned-up in the spring?

If you do, you're taking unnecessary chances with corrosion that will cost you far more later than it will to have your motor winterized now by our expert mechanics at Harbour Marine. Motors delivered to our workshop will be stored FREE! Pickup service available.

WINTERIZE INCLUDES:

- Remove, clean and test spark plugs.
- Check compression.

- Check magneto breaker points.
- Remove carb float bowl, clean out dead gas.
- Drain and refill gear case assemblies.
- Lubricate all grease fittings.
- Check recoil rope and return spring.
- Check water pump discharge flow.
- All cylinders oiled up for winter storage.

Carbon-out used on all winterize jobs.

Repairs needed over winterize charges shall be referred to the owner by phone.

All makes of outboards will be accepted to winterize and repair with the exception of those which have discontinued parts delivery or availability.

Art Carney, Nanette Fabray In Chevy Anniversary at 8.30

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

WELL, ARE YOU ready for another nuclear attack exercise to learn what to do or not to do in the event of the real thing?

Under the heading of "Tocsin B" Canada's preparedness will be tested in theory on Nov. 13 — ironically two days after Armistice Day that marks the wars "to end all wars."

It all starts out on Nov. 9, from 8 to 8.15 p.m. when Prime Minister John Diefenbaker addresses the nation on both CBC radio and CBC television, outlining the plans and the purposes of the exercise.

What time will the "attack" or "alert for the attack" start?

That's the surprise. No one but the organizers of the exercise know that. It is conceivable that it will take place at anytime—just as will the real thing if it happens.

But when the exercise does start sirens will sound off in communities all across Canada.

Sound of the sirens will be the signal for citizens to turn on their radio or television sets for civil defence information.

The prime minister and the 10 provincial premiers will speak on CBC radio and TV from their regional emergency relocation sites.

The broadcast will last 90 minutes.

How did the "enemy attack" work out in theory?

To learn the results turn to "Camera Canada" on Nov. 13 from 10 to 11 p.m. on Channels 6, 2, when the results of "Exercise Tocsin B" will be catalogued and the effects of fallout and blast damage known.

P.S. After writing the above I haven't the heart to go ahead and review "Top Cat," "Alvin" and "Calvin and the Colonel" as I originally had intended.

I hope you understand.

One of Victoria's best-designed homes at an unbelievably low price. This home is truly the work of a professional—sited and oriented to take full advantage of the view and weather—the "earth" colour finish, chosen to blend into the surroundings (a forest backdrop) highlight the beauties of the wood finishes (no cheap stucco). The interior avoids those annoying deficiencies so prevalent in the ordinary NHA house referred to as "the stucco box." The entrance offers space and a feeling of WELCOME with the use of obscure glass, decorative wood designs and drop ceiling. Truly there are dozens of features too numerous to describe in this lovely full-basement, 3 or 4-bedroom home. Here is a house that must be seen to be appreciated and must be lived in to be fully appreciated. This is a home you will be proud to own. Monthly (P & I) $96. Taxes $280. Interest 6¾%. DREAM HOME QUEENSWOOD DRIVE

Nestled in evergreen arbutus, fir and cedar on Queenswood, a retreat truly fit for a Queen. Whether it is the Spring, Summer or Autumn of your marriage she'll fall in love with you all over again when you say—Let's buy it . . .

The lot is large, 1.36 acres and landscaped with charming simplicity that blends into the natural surroundings and makes for a minimum of upkeep.

There's a patio in a sunny spot at the back shielded from the road where privacy is a reality.

Softly luxurious wall-to-wall carpeting will greet you in the thru hall at the front door and leading off the hall you will see—A comfortable living room with a raised hearth fireplace and a dining area designed to seat two or twenty-two.

A kitchen that is a homemaker's dream—there's everything from a lazy susan to a snug breakfast nook and all placed in the best step-saver plan.

A four-piece colored fixture bathroom with a built-in vanity.

Three bedrooms — all with deep wide cupboards and one of which could be converted into a den.

The basement is full size — there is space to roam here with extra plumbing, and all set up for automatic washer and dryer. There is a compact automatic oil hot air furnace that is big enough to keep the home warm and comfortable but not too big that the fuel bill comes too high, and there's a fireplace nicely placed in an area which has been roughed-in ready for you to finish as a family room just the way you would like to have it.

Give me a call. I'd just love to put you in line for some loving.

Rail Non-Ops Seek Wage Hike

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Hall, chief negotiator for Canada's non-operating railway unions, today outlined a new contract program calling for an immediate 7½-cents-an-hour wage increase and rising as high as a possible 25 cents over the next two years.

Mr. Hall told a press conference that the 110,000 members of the 15 CLC-affiliated non-op unions also will seek improved job security, including severance pay, improved health benefits and one extra paid holiday a year. They now get seven paid holidays.

The 68-year-old union chief made the announcement of the new contract demands, to be served formally on the railways about Dec. 15, immediately after the 105-member policy-setting body of the unions completed a two-day meeting to draw up the demands.

The body is made up of representatives from all across Canada.

ON UNEMPLOYMENT

Labor Stand Backed By Senators—Toone

By AB KENT

Rapid developments on the international scene tended to overshadow the most important issue before the sixth annual convention of B.C. Federation of Labor, Victoria Labor Council secretary A. W. Toone said Wednesday.

Mr. Toone was a member of a seven-man special committee on unemployment which reported to the convention after holding its own sessions last week in Vancouver.

'VITAL CONCERN'

"We are after all an organization of workers and this report is of vital concern to their welfare," the unionist said.

He said the committee noted the special senate committee on manpower and unemployment, which has just reported its findings, completely vindicated labor's stand.

STOPS POSSIBLE

Unemployment is Canada's most pressing problem, but steps to reduce it are possible, the senators said.

Such steps have been taken successfully by western European countries, the report said, asking all affiliated unions through the B.C. Federation of Labor to campaign for:

Adoption of fiscal and monetary policies integrated to raise employment; increased public investment in social capital such as public works, schools and hospitals; extended education; shorter workweek; regulated immigration to conform to job opportunities; improved unemployment insurance system; provision of a Canadian merchant marine to facilitate trade; and other requests.

Other highlights of the report:

"The present unemployment threatens the job security of every employed worker. As unemployment rises, more and more jobs will be lost by monthly - rated as well as hourly-rated employees.

"We challenge the attitude taken by the authorities and employers that the public must become used to large numbers of unemployed . . . We challenge this attitude because in other countries with more limited natural resources unemployment has been virtually wiped out by sensible economic planning."

There should be greater local and provincial government participation in federally-subsidized plans for reclaiming land and providing services, slum clearance and financing low-interest permanent works.

The provincial government should also pay 50 per cent of winter works program costs, and the federal government should participate more vigorously in that it should cover more than labor costs.

Anglicans Ask Freer Communion

LONDON (Reuters)—Thirty-two leading Anglican theologians Thursday called for a more liberal policy by the Church of England on intercommunication between denominations to foster church unity.

The call came in an open letter to the archbishops of Canterbury and York, all Anglican bishops and leaders of other denominations.

The theologians rejected the formula for intercommunion put forward at the Lambeth Conference in 1958 as the generally-held Anglican view.

They asked that individual baptized members of churches not in communion with the Church of England should be welcomed to communion on occasions apart from those when they are cut off by distance from their own churches.

They said provision should be made to extend and safeguard the right of Anglicans to communicate at non-Anglican services.

SCOTS GUARDS HERALD BIRTH BY ACCIDENT

LONDON (UPI)—Although no formal ceremonies marked the birth today of Princess Margaret's son, the Queen's Scots Guards unknowingly provided some music.

Bagpipes skirled, drums banged and cymbals crashed under the Princess' window about an hour after the baby arrived as the guards tramped towards their billet. Commented a major:

"We didn't know the birth had taken place. If we had we would have played a special tune. But no one gave us any instructions about noise."

New Baby Fifth In Line

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret's baby is fifth in line of succession to the throne.

He follows his three cousins, the Queen's children, and Princess Margaret herself, but precedes his great uncle, the Duke of Gloucester, and his other cousins.

The 12 persons closest to the throne:

1. The Prince of Wales, born Nov. 14, 1948.
2. Prince Andrew, Feb. 19, 1960.
3. Princess Anne, Aug. 15, 1950.
4. Princess Margaret, Aug 21, 1930.
5. Her son, born today.
6. The Duke of Gloucester, March 31, 1900, the Queen's paternal uncle.
7. Prince William of Gloucester, Dec. 18, 1941.
8. Prince Richard of Gloucester, Aug. 26, 1944.
9. The Duke of Kent, Oct. 9, 1935, first cousin to the Queen.
10. Prince Michael of Kent, July 4, 1942, the duke's brother.
11. Princess Alexandra of Kent, Dec. 25, 1936, his sister.
12. The Princess Royal, April 25, 1897, paternal aunt of the Queen.

Family Paid Birth's Cost

LONDON (UPI)—The birth of Princess Margaret's son today was privately financed—but she could have had the child on National Health if she and her husband had so chosen.

Actually the birth cost the Armstrong - Joneses somewhere between $280 and $420. This estimate includes all medical care from the start of pregnancy until the completion of post-natal care.

City 'Ruler' Applied To Peace Dam

A graphic illustration of the scope of the Peace River power project by Victoria standards was given here Thursday by B.C. Electric president Dr. Gordon Shrum.

The length of the dam will be equal to the distance from the Crystal Garden to Hudson's Bay Co. on Douglas Street, he told Victoria Rotary Club.

The width of the dam will be the equivalent of the distance from Government Street to Vancouver Street on Yates Street.

The dam will be seven times as high as the B.C. Electric building here.

Dr. Shrum said it is estimated that 68,000,000 cubic yards of gravel will be needed for the project.

It will be carried over a new road from Hudson Hope to the Portage Mountain dam-site.

That means that a 12-cubic-yard truckload of gravel would travel over that road every 30 seconds for five years.

JOHN D. WON'T ASK FOR MORE THAN PEOPLE

OTTAWA (CP)—"The leader of the country must not ask for himself more than the people of the country have."

That was Prime Minister Diefenbaker's explanation Thursday of why he intends to remain in a fallout shelter in the basement of his official Ottawa residence if nuclear war hits Canada.

'Compulsion Wrong' For Medical Plans

Compulsory medical services are "wrong," B. E. Freamo, medical economics secretary of the Canadian Medical Association in Toronto, said here Thursday afternoon.

"Compulsion for all residents means that a single type of program will be introduced," Mr. Freamo told the 17th annual meeting of the Western Conference of Prepaid Medical Service Plans at the Empress Hotel.

"A monopoly in medical services insurance prevents any comparison with other methods. . .

"OBSTRUCTIVE"

"Rapid advances in medical knowledge demand adaptation to change and freedom to experiment. The concentration of decision-making power in the hands of government is obstructive to progress."

Mr. Freamo said a compulsory program devised to produce uniformity of service is "doomed to failure" or at least to a lowering of standards.

"This has been shown in Britain by the decision of a proportion of the population to seek services on a private basis, even though many artificial barriers have been raised to prevent it.

"It will also prove true in Saskatchewan, although the proposed legislation militates such choice by refusing to provide reimbursements to participants who choose to seek services from a non-participating Saskatchewan physician.

"Ironically, the legislation does provide for reimbursement if the participant obtains his medical services outside the province."

IN TORONTO

Test Proves Decay Cut By Treating

TORONTO (CP) — A two-year test on the effects of fluoridated drinking water has convinced four Toronto dental researchers that the treated water cuts down on tooth decay.

Reporting for the group at the first Canadian conference on dental research at the faculty of dentistry, University of Toronto, Dr. R. C. Burgess claimed this week fluoridation greatly reduces the DEF (decay, extraction, filling) factor.

The dentist said his group's conclusion is based on tests involving 360 children between the ages of two and four years.

Half that number had their teeth treated with a direct application of fluoride, and the other 180 did not receive fluoride.

At the end of one year, those receiving fluoride had 18.5 per cent fewer DEF problems. After two years, the difference was up to 29.2 per cent.

DENTISTS ASK COMPULSORY FLUORIDATION

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Newfoundland Dental Society urged Thursday that Newfoundland municipalities be forced to fluoridate their water supplies.

"The profession is concerned that the teeth of thousands of children should be deprived of the benefits of fluoridation, while municipal officials fail to acquaint themselves with the benefits of this proven health measure," the society said in a brief to the royal commission on health services.

Fallout's 'Bad Actors' Cause Most Concern

Three radioactive substances in particular need careful watching as fallout from nuclear testing increases. But at this point, their distribution appears well below the immediate danger level to human health. Last of three articles.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The main bad actor atoms in bomb test fallout are strontium, iodine and cesium.

Russia's gigantic 50-megaton-plus explosion shot another dose of them into the air, for winds to blow about and for rains and snow to bring drifting down on people around the world.

Is this a cause of serious concern for North Americans?

No, at least not yet, says the United States Public Health Service, which is keeping a super-cautious eye on fallout.

The watch is maintained because fallout atoms are potentially a hazard, especially if quirks of wind and weather make some localities "hotter" than others.

The test fallout coming from great distance is of possible concern only if it gets inside the body.

Cancer Danger

The trouble with strontium-90 is that it concentrates in bones, while iodine concentrates in the thyroid gland. Too much of these atoms might cause cancers of the bone or thyroid, or leukemia.

Cesium-137 becomes generally distributed through the body, including sex glands, where it might cause genetic changes.

How much is too much for humans? No one can answer this, because no one is sure how LITTLE radiation it takes to cause harmful effects on the human body.

To play it safe, international and U.S. experts have set extremely low maximum doses for daily intake by humans.

They think these tiny amounts would be tolerable without harm. They can't prove it. They do know that fallout from tests so far hasn't gone above these limits.

These limits, as in the case of strontium-90 for example, are at least 100 times less than the amount of strontium required to produce bone cancers in laboratory animals.

Just how many of the bad-actor atoms were created by Russia's monster bombs, and all its current tests, has not been made public. Reason: The Soviets, as well as U.S. bomb testers in the past, have not divulged the makeup of the bombs.

One estimate is that a 50-megaton bomb produces 2,750 pounds of some 200 kinds of radioactive atoms at the outset.

Most of these "die" very quickly, and so don't travel far.

But strontium-90 and cesium 137 remain radioactvie for many years. It takes about 27 years for half the original amount to disappear. If taken in food, these atoms can remain active in the body, emitting potentially damaging rays, for a long time.

Iodine-131 has a half-life—in which half of it becomes harmless—of eight days. In another eight days, only one-quarter of the original amount remains.

If milk became contaminated with iodine, keeping it refrigerated for a month would make it safe to drink, Dr. James Terrill of the U.S. Public Health Service points out.

From all bomb tests through 1958, the actual amount of strontium-90 in children's bones, on the average, was about 26 times less than the maximum amount deemed to be harmless if it is in bones. All the Soviet tests might double this—and it would still be about 13 times less than the estimated "safe" amount.

As a guide for protection, the Federal Radiation Council has set limits on the daily intake over an entire year, as measured in micromicrocuries of activity.

For strontium-90, this ranges from 200 to 2,000 and for iodine from 100 to 1,000. A micromicrocurie is 1-1,000,000th of 1,100,000th of a curie, with a curie being equivalent to the radioactivity in one gram 1-28th of an ounce of radium.

The public health service is keeping a daily watch on radioactivity in the air, water and milk, and some foods, to detect any dangerous increases.

Protection

If limits are approached or exceeded, then some action can be taken to protect people.

For milk, switching to canned or powdered milk—which had been on the shelf long enough—or letting fresh milk sit a while, could remove the danger from iodine.

Washing fresh fruits and vegetables carefully cold remove fallout atoms.

If certain crops were found to be relatively high in strontium, they could be avoided as human food. Cows could be fed forage which had been stored inside barns or silos, and hence not touched by fallout.

Paper Wins Recognition

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — The Lethbridge Herald has won special recognition for its "outstanding contribution and leadership in civil emergency planning."

Air Vice-Marshal George Howsam of Edmonton, regional officer for the Emergency Measures Organization, announced Thursday that the International Association of Public Information Officers has given the Herald its public service award for 1960.

The newspaper ran a four-part series on atomic war survival in September 1960. It has published many stories since then on civil defence and emergency measures planning.

TALKS IN OTTAWA and Washington are scheduled by British Aviation Minister Peter Thornycroft who leaves Britain Sunday for the U.S.

Population Boosted

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australia's population at the end of June was 10,508,191, an increase of more than 1,500,000 since 1954.

ADENAUER IN AS 2 PARTIES IN AGREEMENT

BONN (Reuters) — The rightist Free Democrats today announced agreement with Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats on the basis for formation of a coalition government.

Free Democrat Leader Enrich Mende made the announcement following a meeting between the two parties which was called after negotiations collapsed Thursday night.

The Free Democrats scheduled a meeting of their parliamentary group to consider the agreement for which its approval is necessary.

Before the coalition bargaining got under way today, leaders of the two parties held separate meetings with West German President Heinrich Luebke.

Both Are Doing Well

LONDON (CP)—Princess Margaret gave birth to a son today and her husband said she was thrilled and delighted.

First to see the baby boy—after the doctors and nurses—was the father, the Earl of Snowdon, the former society photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones.

Coming from the royal maternity suite in Clarence House, he exclaimed to a member of the household:

"The princess and I are absolutely thrilled and delighted."

His son—fifth in line to the British throne—was born Viscount Linley.

The infant's weight was announced as six pounds, four ounces.

An official announcement said "mother and son are doing well."

"It's a sweet baby," said a member of the household.

The child was born in the room in Clarence House that Princess Margaret once used as a bedroom. She lived at the house, home of the Queen Mother, until her marriage in May, 1960. Both she and her husband are 31.

Crowds cheered outside Clarence House. The Scots Guards' bagpipe band marched past filling the air with highland music.

The news of the birth was relayed quickly to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip. Congratulations began pouring in.

Philip commented at Leeds in north England: "It's a great relief all 'round."

Lord Evans, 58, one of five medical men who attended the princess, told the father "It's a boy."

"Can I see her?" asked the husband, meaning Margaret.

"I think so," replied the doctor.

Happy Father Showers Red Roses

Tony went first to see Margaret. And then he tip-toed in to see his son.

He hurried to see the Queen Mother. With her, he revisited his wife and son.

Before the baby's birth—10.45 a.m. (2.45 PST)—Tony sent Margaret an armload of red roses. He repeated the order after the birth.

Bursting with the news, the Queen Mother got on the telephone to Buckingham Palace. To the Queen, she said:

"It's a boy, they're both doing well."

Within three hours the Queen was at Clarence House. The room in which the boy was born was the same in which Elizabeth gave birth to Princess Anne 11 years ago.

The news was flashed to the far corners of the world. It even went out to jet airliners in flight.

Trans World Airlines and British Overseas Airways Corporation spokesmen said their pilots in flight—everywhere—were asked to pass on the news.

The baby is known as Viscount Linley of Nymans, a town in the southern English county of Sussex.

The young lord was placed by nurse Anne Thomson in a wicker crib made in Dublin and sent by his paternal grandmother, the Countess of Rosse. She and the princess had guessed right. Hoping for a boy, they picked blue ribbons to trim the crib.

No official gun salutes heralded the birth of Margaret's son. Such salutes are reserved for children of the sovereign.

Courtesy Message to Macmillan

As a matter of courtesy Margaret's private secretary gave news of the birth to Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Home Secretary R. A. Butler and Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is spiritual head of the Church of England.

Although no formal pomp and ceremony accompanied the birth, the huge crowd outside Clarence House captured the spirit of most Britons—mixed relief and joy—when they let go with a wild cheer at news of the birth.

The day had started beautifully, with a Mediterranean blue sky, but began to cloud over about the time of the birth.

Margaret's boy is fifth in line of succession to the throne, behind Prince Charles, 13;

B.C. Hasn't Rejected Power Suit—Bonner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner says the government of British Columbia has not rejected B.C. Power Corporation's petition to sue the government over the price paid for the B.C. Electric Company.

"The fiat is under careful scrutiny and I will soon be in a position to make a report to the Executive Council," the attorney-general told a meeting of students at the University of British Columbia, on Thursday.

He said any decision will not be made known until after Premier Bennett returns from a two-week vacation.

The premier had indicated in a speech in the Okanagan a month ago that the fiat would not be granted.

But the attorney-general told the students that "there has been no decision or formal action yet on the part of the cabinet".

He asserted that the premier had merely said he considered the price paid a fair one.

B.C. Power is asking permission to seek a court award of $225,000,000 for the B.C. Electric. The corporation, which held all BCE's common shares, was paid just under $111,000,000 by the government when it expropriated BCE on August 1.

Mr. Bonner also defended the $38 which the government has offered for B.C. Power shares as a fair one—"the market

Cough Syrup Will Give Fallout Aid

LONDON (Reuters) — A British thyroid specialist today claimed that cough mixture will help protect people from radioactive iodine 131—a product of nuclear tests.

Phyllis George, consultant surgeon at the Royal Free Hospital here, told reporters: "A tablespoonful three times a day for five days will give you protection from iodine 131 for three months.

"The cough mixture must contain potassium iodide, of course, and the best way to protect people properly would be to give them potassium tablets before any fallout arrived."

Miss George, specialist in the hospital's thyroid clinic, made her claim at a time when government experts are working on plans to limit the possible dangers of iodine 131 when fallout from Russia's latest tests reaches Britain.

'GOOD LUCK TO HER'

Blessed Event Heralded Here

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

British Columbians joined today with millions of British subjects in heartfelt good wishes to Princess Margaret and her husband.

All who remember the Princess's visit here during the Centennial year of 1958 responded avidly to the birth of her first son.

"Jolly good luck to her," said a city bus driver. "She's a darn nice girl."

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes crystallized these thoughts in a cable addressed to the Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon:

"All in British Columbia are delighted to hear of the birth of your son. May I extend hearty congratulations and best wishes to you and Viscount Snowdon."

Those of us who met the Princess at a private press reception in the Empress Hotel felt a personal thrill when the news flashed across the wires.

PLEASANT MEMORY

We recalled the sunny spontaneous greeting she had for each of us, and one particular incident glowed in our memories.

That was when Margaret took a cigarette from her handbag and a dozen lighters leapt to her service. The princess declined them all and waited while a Times reporter struggled with a little box of book matches.

He still keeps that match as a souvenir and another reporter is remembered for the classic remark:

"I feel I'd like to take her away from it all!"

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black cabled this message:

"The people of the government of British Columbia extend to you and Viscount Snowden their heartiest congratulations on the birth of your first son."

Archbishop Harold Sexton wired congratulations on behalf of Anglicans throughout the province,

"All of us who had the privilege of knowing Princess Margaret will wish her well on this happy occasion," he said.

At the City Hall, Mayor Percy Scurrah said:

"On behalf of the citizens of Victoria I extend heartfelt congratulations to the Princess and her husband."

REAL CLIMAX

The Princess' arrival here on July 12, 1958, was the climax to a year of celebration marking British Columbia's 100th birthday.

Much had been heard about her—much had been written about her. And in person the Princess proved every bit as charming and vivacious as we had been led to expect.

She worshipped with 1,500 Victorians at Christ Church Cathedral, uttering the age-old responses from memory and listening with an air of

WHY RUSSIA IGNORES FALLOUT DANGER?

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Charles B. Limbrick, retired RCAF group captain and missile and radar expert, said today he believes the Soviet Union has perfected an anti-radiation drug which has been mass-administered to the Russian people.

He said that in such circumstances Russia can detonate many more nuclear bombs, lure the West into testing its own nuclear weapons and "can wait a long while for results."

Group Capt. Limbrick, former director of radio warfare in the RCAF, said in an interview that Western nations for some years have known that Russia was "on the track of a chemical pill or substance to offset most of radiation sickness effects."

"In my opinion," he added, "Russia now has a medical counter to radiation."

"Obviously, Russia is not worried about contamination," Group Capt. Limbrick said. It had set off at least 30 nuclear bombs in the current series of tests.

Group Capt. Limbrick said he was told in Europe last year that the U.S.S.R. was "close to success" in its search for an antidote for radiation poisoning. He did not identify his informant but indicated his source was a Western official closely associated with biological research.

He said it was known five years ago that Russia was a "good deal" ahead of the West in the biological aspects of radiation sickness.

"Russia will not only let off many fallout-producing bombs, some very large, but also by the same action induce the United States, United Kingdom and France also to release fallout.

"The Russians can wait a long while for results."

Biologists at the atomic centre at Chalk River, Ont., more than two years ago, launched experiments with a drug which may help to protect man against atomic radiation.

Research with rats indicated that the drug—parathormone—provides protection when it is injected before exposure to radioactivity and to a lesser degree after irradiation.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission is investigating the possibility of giving people anti-strontium pills in the event of a nuclear attack.

Purdy to Step Down From BCE Post?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun says there are strong indications that former president Harry L. Purdy will leave the British Columbia Electric Co. within the next three days.

Dr. Gordon Shrum, head of the nationalized company, predicted some resignations in a speech in Victoria Thursday night.

Mr. Purdy was president of the Privately-owned BCE after the death of A. E. (Dal) Grauer. After the provincial government took over he reverted to vice-president and his salary was later cut to $35,000 from $60,000.

The Sun also says that Harold J. Merilees, long-time executive assistant to Mr. Grauer, and chief engineer Jack J. Steede are on their way out.

Power Rate Cuts April 1 For All B.C. Says Shrum

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislature Reporter

All British Columbians can expect a cut in electric light bills next April 1.

B.C. Electric president Dr. Gordon Shrum said Thursday this is the "logical date" for the reductions across the province promised by Premier Bennett.

Dr. Shrum told a Victoria Rotary Club luncheon the government's goal is to make B.C. rates on a par with those of Ontario Hydro.

Ontario's rates at present are about half those charged here.

But Dr. Shrum said B.C. couldn't match these rates immediately.

MEET IN MIDDLE

Ontario's rates are going up, he said; B.C.'s will go down; and they will meet somewhere in the middle.

(Ontario charges $4.11 for 300 kilowatt hours of electricity in Toronto; the price in Vancouver is $9.63. For 400 kilowatt hours Toronto pays $6.63 and Vancouver $11.53. Average Vancouver consumption at Dec. 31 was 336 kilowatt hours a month.)

Dr. Shrum—in what he called his first report to the B.C. Electric shareholders—also:

Disclosed that there will have to be more top-level resignations in B.C. Electric and that the first will come this week;

"We are top-heavy in senior staff."

Predicted that B.C. Electric and the B.C. Power Commission will merge in about five years;

Promised there would be few staff changes when B.C. Electric and B.C. Hydro exchange territory in Victoria and the north next Jan. 1.

B.C. Power Enhances Chances To Get Better Share Terms

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Bell

There is a strong feeling among investment men that B.C. Power Corp., by raising the issue of convertibility of $40 million in B.C. Electric Series B debentures into B.C. Power common shares has greatly enhanced its prospects for obtaining better terms from the B.C. government than the $38 a share offered.

The only way the government could head off B.C. Power from getting into the courts with this aspect of the takeover would be to call the debentures immediately—and it is doubtful if the required $42,500,000 could be found by the government.

The debentures are callable at $106 within 30 days' notice until Nov. 1, 1962, and are convertible into 1,080,000 shares of B.C. Power until Nov. 3, 1969.

For the smaller common shareholder of B.C. Power, however, while the long-term prospects may be enhanced by the convertibility issue, there is also the prospect of a greatly diminished cash distribution from the B.C. Electric sale—$18 to $19 a share instead of $22 to $23—and the possibility of considerable delay in the eventual winding up of B.C. Power.

According to B.C. Power president A. Bruce Robertson, this issue is not the only legal step being contemplated by the company in its attempt to win better terms.

JOBS FOR 400 CONSTRUCTION WORKERS

Mill Starts Aug. 15, 1964, 'at 8 A.M.'

CROFTON—Target date for the startup of the $25,000,000 newsprint mill to be added to the B.C. Forest Products Ltd. pulp mill here is "Aug. 15, 1964, at 8 a.m.," general manager John R. Grieve said here this week.

Salesmen already have firm orders for newsprint from the new mill, which is designed to produce 350 tons per day.

400 WORKERS

During construction of the mill, the labor force will reach peaks of at least 400 in the summers of 1962, 1963 and 1964, he said.

When in operation the mill will employ 150 men, most of them specialists, but there will be room for local workers. Payroll will be $700,000 per year.

"Statistics show that because of this, there will be 233 additional new jobs in the district—people working in clothing stores, banks, gas stations, and other similar jobs," Mr. Grieve said.

Another impact of the mill on the local economy will be through taxation, he said.

NEW MONEY

The newsprint mill will provide $197,000 of new money in addition to the $387,000 already paid by the pulp mill, which will mean a reduction of five mills on the North Cowichan municipal budget of $870,000.

Fuller utilization of timber and diversification of operation were the two main reasons for the proposed construction of the mill, he said.

V.I. ROUNDUP

Deadline Tonight On Sale of Ferry

Deadline of midnight tonight has been set on the offer for sale of the Mv. Island Princess to the provincial government.

The ferry, now operating on the Steveston-Gulf Islands service, is offered for sale by Coast Ferries Ltd.

Capt. O. H. New, company president, said the deadline for sale was due to the need to find work for the ferry in another area of the B.C. coast if the government does not buy.

Capt. New said that his company can no longer afford to carry on the present service and has decided to sell for the depreciated value set by government appraisers.

Originally it was intended to terminate the service Sept. 11, but in the interests of island residents, the date of termination was extended to Nov. 15.

Premier Bennett said that the government would take over the service if it was dropped by the company.

NANAIMO — Ald. Haig Burns, who will retire from city council next month, has been named by Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce as chairman of a committee to speed development of Newcastle Island.

The island, given to the province by the city for development as a park, could be a tourist attraction, according to the chamber. It wants the island improved sufficiently to invite visitors travelling to and from the Century 21 fair in Seattle next year.

Restrictions Off On Clam-Digging

Restrictions on digging clams have been removed from all areas of Vancouver Island, according to a federal fisheries announcement.

They were imposed on various waters in 1957, following an infestation of red tide, but were gradually lifted until only the taking of butter clams in Courtney and Campbell River was prohibited. The new order opens these areas for digging.

Did Tribly Go Into a Trance?

MAPLE BAY—The story of a dog named Trilby, who must have gone into a trance like her 19th Century counterpart, was told here this week, but with a happy ending.

A giant German short-haired pointer, quiet and well behaved, she belongs to Mrs. Ellen Tait, Norcross Road, Duncan.

On Tuesday Mrs. Jean Grumbach, Maple Bay, visited Mrs. Tait, and took along a pot of bones for Trilby. On arrival she took the pot from the trunk of the car, but left the trunk lid open.

After having lunch she set off for Victoria. She noticed the trunk lid was down, but presumed Mrs. Tait had closed it. She continued on to Victoria, where she spent the night with friends.

Meanwhile, Trilby was missing. Mrs. Tait had police and SPCA officials searching the flats and marshes of Somenos Lake Tuesday and Wednesday.

It went on until Wednesday noon, when Mrs. Grumbach reported that Trilby—quiet and well behaved—had been found in her car trunk. There had not been a whimper in almost 24 hours.

She now is safely at home.

LOOTING BROKE OUT in the business district of devastated Belize, British Honduras, after Hurricane Hattie passed, leaving 15,000 homeless and 75 per cent of all buildings destroyed or damaged. Soldiers were brought in from Jamaica to maintain order.

Ruined Capital To Move Inland

BELIZE (AP)—Twice destroyed by hurricanes in 30 years, this capital of British Honduras will be moved inland 44 miles from the exposed Caribbean coast to higher ground.

The government announcement came as the known death toll from hurricane Hattie rose to 151, and many more bodies were feared buried in the mud and wreckage left by the storm Tuesday.

The rising Belize River threatened floods in the city of 30,000, which bore the brunt of the 200-mile-an-hour winds and tidal waves that crashed in from the Caribbean.

Belize counted 62 dead. An estimated 75 per cent of the buildings in the capital were destroyed or damaged. The property devastation was greater than the 1931 hurricane that levelled the city and killed more than 2,000 persons.

There were 38 dead reported in Stann Creek, one at Gale's Point, 29 on Turneffe and 14 on Cay Caulker. The latter two are small islands off the coast.

Five persons were reported killed in neighboring Guatemala and two in Honduras.

British troops were flown from Jamaica to help guard against looting as the clearing of the debris went slowly, mostly by hand.

"When we are able to remove the debris from the streets, I fear many more bodies will be found," said Prime Minister George Price. "We are waiting for heavy equipment."

Raymond Yates, a waiter at the Fort George Hotel, told of the horror on hurricane night.

"I swam nine blocks right through the streets," he said. "On the way I found two bodies. I put them on a high place, where it was dry, and continued to swim. I came across a woman with two children. I helped the mother to safety, and swam the children to a dry place."

Evacuation of the thousands of homeless moved slowly. A shortage of gasoline contributed to transport difficulties. Special food dispensaries gave out rice to the destitute.

Relief supplies continued to pour in from abroad.

CRIPPLE KILLS WIFE AFTER BEING BEATEN

BOSTON (UPI)—A multiple sclerosis victim told police he shot and killed his wife Thursday night because she beat him while he was helpless in a wheelchair.

William Seward, 28, partially blind and crippled told police he shot his wife Natalie, 29, in the back of the head with a .22 calibre rifle.

Seward told police his wife had a bad temper and beat him and her 5-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

Ex-mayor Claude Harrison Thursday announced he is considering running for the top civic post next month.

UNUSUAL JUDGMENT

Wife Gets Blame For Lost Hubby

VANCOUVER (CP)—A housewife who claims she lost her $19,000-a-year department store executive husband to another woman will receive damages in an unusual Supreme Court alienation of affections action.

Mr. Justice F. K. Collins said Thursday damages would be awarded Mrs. Genevieve Edwina Judge, formerly of Edmonton, against Mrs. Marie Isabelle Smith, in a written judgment to be delivered later.

Mrs. Judge, in the uncontested action, claimed she had been reduced to the status of a lonely, hard-pressed woman, about to lose her home for non-payment of mortgage arrears.

She said her husband and Mrs. Smith obtained Idaho state divorces from their respective spouses and remarried in that state. She sought damages for enticement of her husband and alienation of his affection.

Married in Edmonton in 1930, Mrs. Judge came to Vancouver with her husband in 1949. They had two children, both of whom are now married.

ONLY INCOME

The family home, in her husband's name, is about to be foreclosed for $9,000 mortgage arrears, she said. Her only income is a monthly cheque for $128 from her husband.

Mrs. Judge told of a telephone call after her husband's Idaho marriage to Mrs. Smith. "I could hear her coaching him in the background, saying, 'Tell her to get out and work.'"

The woman said on a visit to her, the pair entered the home and Mrs. Smith walked to a photo of Mr. Judge saying: "What is this doing here? He is my husband."

"Mrs. Smith dangled the keys of our car in front of me and said the car was hers as well as the house and also said that they were not going to pay the mortgage on the house and that I would have to get out."

HAD A BALL

The witness said Mrs. Smith told her of the money they had spent on the Idaho trip. "We had a ball," Mrs. Judge quoted Mrs. Smith as saying. "Look at my tan."

Mrs. Judge continued: "They walked out holding hands, and when they got into the car she was practically sitting on his lap."

Commented Mr. Justice Collins: "Before she is finished, she will probably be standing on his neck.

"Mrs. Smith has hurt Mrs. Judge in every way one woman could hurt another.

"From being the wife of a husband whose earnings were nearly $19,000 a year, she has been reduced to a woman with comparatively nothing."

3 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

CALGARY (CP) — Three children died early today when fire swept through their home in Bowness, a town on the northwest outskirts of Calgary.

Their father was able to save his wife and five other children.

All were in hospital today and none was believed in serious condition.

Dead are Doris Cox, 15, and her brothers Ronald, 13, and James, 10.

In hospital are Mrs. Raymond Cox, Robert, 11, Larry, 9, Harry 8, Bruce 7 Wally 18 months.

A furnace explosion is believed to have started the fire while the family was asleep. Mr. Cox managed to carry the baby from the rented house to a neighboring house where the alarm was turned in.

Detective Dismissed

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Det. Sgt. Donald Macdonald, chief of the Vancouver police gambling squad, was fired Thursday after a secret trial.

Macdonald, on the police force for 26 years, announced his own dismissal. Police Chief George Archer, who fired him, and Deputy Chief Gordon Ambrose, who prosecuted Macdonald at the trial, declined to comment on grounds the matter was a "domestic one."

The firing came after a day-and-a-half of secret hearings on eight charges of breaking the police disciplinary code.

THE ONLY MAN I EVER CARED FOR

He Loved...and Died for Me

VANCOUVER — "He loved me so much he was willing to die for me."

Red-haired Dawn Adams, convicted bawdy house keeper, used those words Wednesday to describe her 34-year-old lawyer husband, Edward Rogers, who took an overdose of sleeping pills after unsuccessfully defending her on the charge in a Victoria court.

Padding around her apartment in black leotards and stroking a Siamese cat, Mrs. Rogers — charged under her former name of Dawn Adams —said her husband had "kinky moods."

She said a few weeks ago he went to the police after trying to kill her. He told them she was wanted in Victoria for skipping bail on a two-year-old bawdy house charge. That night he had cut up $1,000 worth of her clothes with a razor blade, later saying he didn't remember.

"I knew he was in one of his kinky moods," she said.

After her husband's suicide death she was given a suspended sentence on the bawdy house charge and fined $300 for skipping bail.

Mrs. Rogers said she will scatter her husband's ashes over English Bay.

"He died for me, not because of me," she said. "You don't know how I loved him. He was the first man I really loved. He loved me so much he was willing to sacrifice his life for me.

"Our happiest memories were swimming, skiing and picnicking at the sea. The least I can do is put him to rest in the waters he loved so well.

"They say I am a call girl. I cannot live with that name. I am a good girl. I was a good wife."

She may go back to her native England to forget.

"Society is forcing me to leave," she said, disclosing she had been given 30 days to vacate her west-end apartment.

History Repeats for Oldtimer On Unfinished 'Dream Street'

Forty-two years ago, when he was 43 years old, a Victoria landscape gardener assisted Premier Simon Tolmie in the planting of an oak tree at the official opening of Shelbourne War Memorial Park, now known as Memorial Gore, near Cedar Hill Cross Road.

On Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, the same man, Albert E. Horner, now 85, will plant an eastern maple tree at a rededication ceremony for the park and Shelbourne Street to commemorate the dead of two world wars and the Korean war.

"It is a strange case of history repeating itself," said Mr. Horner, who lives at 1729 Kisber. "I can remember the first ceremony as if it were yesterday. Old Premier Tolmie was wearing a tall hat and all the city's dignitaries were there.

"The date was July 19, 1919."

The Nov. 11 ceremony will mark another milestone in the history and preservation of Shelbourne Street as a living war memorial.

It has been called The Street of Unfinished Dreams.

FRENCH TYPE

Original plans called for development of a tree-lined French-type avenue from Mount Douglas to Rockland Avenue. But the tree-planting never got beyond Cedar Hill Cross Road, and the street ended insignificantly against a board fence on Denman Street.

"Failure to follow through with these plans robbed Greater Victoria of a beautiful grand boulevard," Mr. Horner said.

The idea of making Shelbourne a memorial avenue was conceived by the city council and Victoria Chamber of Commerce in November, 1918. But it did not take root until after the opening of Memorial Gore in 1919.

It was decided to plant trees all along the avenue and to improve and extend it from year to year as far as Rockland Avenue. But it was not until Oct. 2, 1921, that the first Remembrance Tree was planted on Shelbourne.

5,000 ATTENDED

On that day more than 5,000 travelled out to the Mount Douglas end of the road to see Lieutenant-Governor Walter C. Nicol plant the tree.

For the next few years the tree-planting on Memorial Avenue was a "must" for any prominent visitor.

These included Baron Byng of Vimy and Lady Byng, Sir Arthur Currie, General Joseph Joffre of France and Marshal Ferdinand Foch, supreme commander of Allied forces in France.

There is even a tree planted by Marshal Henri Petain who rose to fame in the First World War but lost prestige in the Second.

In all about 350 trees were planted from Mount Douglas to Cedar Hill Cross Road. Many of the trees were protected by circular wrought-iron railings, with plaques attached. Of these only two remain.

MANY PLEAS

Interest in Shelbourne Street began to wane when a memorial cenotaph was planned for the grounds of the Legislative Buildings. During the early 30s frequent pleas were made for completion of the avenue. But they got nowhere.

Finally, in 1935, the city decided that Memorial Avenue should consist of that portion of Shelbourne Street north of Cedar Hill Cross Road. The Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee was made responsible for its upkeep.

So ended the original plan for Shelbourne.

MONTE ROBERTS

The editorial page of this newspaper, which is forever coming up with interesting facts and even more interesting interpretations of same, has been digging into the question of age.

Is a man past 40 too old, asks the editorial page.

In reply, the editorial page points to the ages of world leaders, the boy prodigy amongst whom is President Kennedy of the United States of America.

And even he is 44, an age considered close to senility by what we laughingly call the younger generation.

As for the rest of the world leaders, the editorial page points out they are indeed senior citizens.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain is 67, and so is Nikita Khruschev. President Charles de Gaulle of France is 71, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany is 85, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek 74, and Mao Tse-tung 68.

The editorial page appears to interpret these facts as encouraging to doddling old codgers like me, to whom 40 is a figure to be achieved only on a speedometer, and not very often, at that.

At first glance it does seem rather cheering to realize six of the world's greatest men have a combined age of 432, and average out at a ripe 72.

But on sober reflection, what have these emininent elders been doing lately?

They have been getting the world into a pretty pickle, that's what they have been doing.

One of these days, the younger generation is going to wake up to what their ancient leaders are doing and—pow! Comes the revolution.

Let's try an average age of, say, 30, among world leaders, and let oldsters like me confine our interest in world affairs to reading about them in the paper.

$20,000 Yearly For New B.C. Trade Post

B.C.'s new external trade commissioner, Maj.-Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister, is being paid $20,000 a year in salary and expenses.

Gen. Hoffmeister was appointed to the special task of boosting export trade last month after his return from the job of B.C. agent-general in London.

At that time salary details were not announced.

A cabinet order today gives him $10,500 a year in salary plus a "representational allowance" of $9,500 a year.

Gen. Hoffmeister is temporarily working in Victoria, but the trade department plans to give him an office in Vancouver.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Fine weather of this afternoon will give way to a few clouds tonight and increasing cloudiness and rain by Saturday evening, weatherman William Mackie predicted today.

Temperatures tonight will be between 32 and 37 degrees, and the maximum Saturday will be 48 degrees.

Winds will die down tonight, but will be southeasterly Saturday at from 20 to 25 miles per hour, and westerly at 35 miles by Saturday evening.

There likely will be partial clearing Sunday in the wake of the Saturday night storm, he said.

A street lighting system instituted by local improvement was completed at Brentwood today by the B.C. Electric, and will be activated tonight or Saturday.

There are 36 lights of the newest type in the area bounded by Verdier and Benvenuto to the north and south, and West Saanich Road and the waterfront to the east and west.

Work was ordered by Central Saanich municipality as a result of a petition in the area conducted by Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce. Operation will be automatic.

VERY FEW COHOES

Small Run at Goldstream Expected Later in Month

Sightseers will have to wait until after Remembrance Day to see the annual spawning migration of salmon in Goldstream, fisheries officials said today.

They will be in their greatest numbers in the last two weeks of November, he said.

There are a "very, very few" cohoes in the stream at present, and although there are chums in Saanich Inlet, they have not yet made their way into the fresh water.

Chums, or dog salmon, form the bulk of the Goldstream run, and traditionally are late in spawning.

Fisheries spokesmen fear the run this year will be small at best, since the fish are the return cycle of 1957, which was small.

Trial Run Plan On Parking Lots

Test Demand Before Going Ahead

Mayor Percy Scurrah said today the city will consider testing out the proposed downtown parking locations before erecting multi-deck parking garages.

His comment came after the provincial cabinet gave its approval to a $1,115,000 debenture issue to finance the project previously approved by downtown ratepayers.

Mayor Scurrah said a prominent businessman suggested the city acquire the two proposed sites, pull down existing buildings and create surface parking lots to test the demand before erecting the buildings.

"I think it's a good suggestion and it certainly will be considered," he said. "We don't want to make any mistakes.

BACK UP THEORIES

"We all know that off-street parking space is needed but this kind of test could back up the theories with actual experience and ensure the timing is correct.

"We wouldn't want to erect the buildings too far in advance of their economic use although we do expect to lose money on operations for the first year or two," he said.

Negotiations already have begun for two specific sites recommended by an advisory citizens' committee.

The sites have not been pinpointed but are on View, between Blanshard and Douglas, and in the area bounded by Langley, Fort, Government and Yates.

The original plan called for erection of a 400-car garage on the View Street site and a 200-car garage on the other site.

PEARSON MAKES HEADWAY

Police and parents hope a co-ordinated approach to juvenile troubles will reap peaceful dividends in the Gordon Head area, Saanich Chief W. A. Pearson said today.

The move came after a Halloween incident which saw an unruly group of 50 to 60 youths run through the Gordon Head area shouting taunts, trampling gardens and frightening residents.

When police were called, their cruisers were stoned by the arrogant youths in an hour-long running battle. One car was damaged.

At one point in the affair, a teacher in the area was threatened with a beating if he didn't go back into his house and "mind his own business."

The new approach was given its first test in the Gordon Head Community Hall Thursday night when parents and children faced Chief Pearson and juvenile officer Harry Adams.

Worthwhile Meeting

"I think we accomplished quite a bit with the parents, and not so much with the kids themselves, except for a few," Mr. Pearson said today.

"We got the names of many of the gang,' said the chief, "and could have gone around to their schools and homes and rounded them up.

"But we felt rather than do this we should hold a meeting with police, parents, and the teenagers themselves to thrash it all out and make everyone aware of the consequences of such acts."

The chief pointed out, however, that this friendly method did not mean charges will not be laid.

Stern Lecture

The meeting saw a total of 50 parents and teenagers present.

Chief Pearson delivered a stern lecture outlining the charges that could be laid under the Criminal Code.

He told the teenagers they can't count on protection because they are juveniles. Any person over fourteen may be tried in open court, he said.

The hall was silent as Mr. Pearson delivered his message and his words took effect on the parents.

"One parent there had a big chip on his shoulder when he came," the chief said, "but after the meeting he came up to me and said he was convinced that police and parents must work hand in hand."

Mr. Pearson told the Times today he wants parents to rely on the police and not fear them.

"I want parents to call us when they cannot handle a situation," the chief said, "I think they will now."

Angry Retorts

The youths present listened calmly to the chief but yelled angry retorts to Juvenile Officer Adams when he began to talk.

They directed their anger at newspaper and radio reports which, they said, described them as thugs and hoodlums.

Mr. Adams said, if anything, press reports leaned on the mild side of the actual events.

When he described the night's deeds many of the youths broke into laughter.

They buttoned up sharply, however, when Mr. Adams said he intended to proceed with the investigation, and would treat them as individuals, not as a group.

The youths were then asked to leave the room so that parents could question the two police officers.

The chief told the parents that Tuesday's antics seemed to be the result of "growing conformity" on the part of youngsters who feared "acting as individuals."

'Intimidated'

"It is my opinion," Mr. Pearson said, "the whole affair was started by eight or ten known troublemakers in the area, and the rest were intimidated into going along."

The chief admitted that from actions of most of the teenagers at the meeting they still thought of the whole evening as some sort of hilarious joke.

"The conception of right or wrong seems beyond the scope of many of them," he said.

Fallout Fears Fading

The fallout cloud from Russia's 50-plus megaton bomb blast Monday appeared to be passing to the north of Victoria today.

Radiation readings to be taken at the Pacific Naval Laboratory Saturday morning are expected to confirm this.

A test of several thousand cubic feet of air at 9 a.m. today showed the level of radiation was at about average for the period since Russia resumed testing about a month ago.

Weather officials at Vancouver said they expected the cloud to pass just north of the mainland city.

FAST MOVING

The cloud, in a 150-mile band, is travelling at 60 to 65 miles an hour at a height of about 30,000 feet. It was expected to reach Alberta late today.

Robert List, head of the U.S. Weather Bureau atmospheric radioactivity research project in Washington, D.C., said in a telephone interview he exepected the cloud to go inland over Powell River, about 100 miles northwest of Vancouver, and along a line at 50 degrees latitude.

Long Run In Ambulance 'Pays Off'

A harrowing 175-mile ambulance run from Campbell River to Victoria Thursday "paid off" for 37-year-old William Gibbons, formerly of Victoria, who suffered head injuries in a sport car crash at the up-Island community Thursday afternoon.

He was operated on Thursday night at St. Joseph's Hospital for a depressed skull fracture, and today was reported by hospital authorities to be "responding well and in satisfactory condition."

Gibbons was injured when his car went out of control and landed upside down in the forecourt at Campbell River municipal hall.

BAD WEATHER

He was brought to Victoria by ambulance driver Douglas Robinson, who reported rain, sleet, and high wind for most of his trip.

He said he was able to average from 50 to 60 miles per hour, and that other drivers on the road co-operated by keeping clear.

Only confusion was at Victoria when he went to Royal Jubilee Hospital, not knowing that the hospital was full and that arrangements had been made to take the patient at St. Joseph's. He made his way unescorted to the other hospital.

Driver Uninjured As 'Lid-Flipper' Rams Into Pole

In an unusual accident early today the canvas top of an old model convertible blew off causing the driver to lose control.

Robert Cartwright, 3028 Jutland, was uninjured when his car left the Trans-Canada Highway at Burnside in Saanich and hit a light pole and guard rail about 12.25 a.m.

He was driving east when there were "two loud thumps" and the top blew off. The 1952 car was described as a total wreck and about $100 damage was done to the pole and rail.

Flat-Top Expecting Big Crowds

Sharp-eyed watchers along Victoria's waterfront had a preview glimpse of the United States Navy's amphibious assault ship USS Iwo Jima, due to dock at Esquimalt Saturday for a two-day visit.

She arrived off Port Angeles across Juan de Fuca Strait this morning, and could be seen standing on and off the south shore of the strait.

The 18,000-ton helicopter carrier is to pick up pilot off William Head at 8.30 a.m. Saturday, and to dock at 9 a.m. Canadian military and HMC Dockyard civilian personnel will be invited to tour the ship Saturday afternoon.

Her commanding officer, Capt. T. D. Harris, has indicated he hopes a record crowd will accept the open invitation to visit the ship between 1 and 5 p.m. Sunday. She will be berthed at HMCS Naden, reached through the main gate on Admirals Road.

Go-Ahead Given On Jubilee Wing

Work probably will begin within the next two weeks on Royal Jubilee Hospital's new $2,623,000 wing.

"I've been waiting for this the past seven years," hospital administrator George Masters said happily today.

Action, following almost two years of delay, is expected speedily on the heels of an announcement late Thursday that the provincial government has given approval for award of the contract to a Vancouver firm which entered the lowest bid.

A spokesman for the company, Burns and Button Concrete and Construction Company, Burns and Dutton Con official notification had not been received but he expected work would be underway in two weeks.

FENCE OFF SITE

First job is to erect a wooden fence around the project site.

This will be followed by drillers, power shovels and dynamite crews as initial work requires removal of 4,000 yards of rock to clear the site for the five-storey L-shaped wing.

The structure will be added to the main building, with the long arm of the wing stretching towards the maternity building and the short arm jutting outward on the site of the old red brick administration building which was demolished earlier this year.

The new wing will accommodate 195 beds on three floors, with space for 31 of these left in a partially-finished state.

SPECIAL SURGERY

Top floor will be devoted to surgery, providing 10 operating rooms including special facilities for cardiac and neuro-surgery and areas for accommodating patients before and after operations.

Also included in the wing will be a large radio-therapy department with a cobalt bomb and a modern radiological suite of seven rooms.

A special firing of 250,000 bricks, no longer in use, has been arranged to match the brickwork in the present building erected in 1926.

"However, this will not cost us anything extra," said Mr. Masters. "I think the total cost of the brickwork, installed, will be approximately $50,000.

The entire project, expected to take about 16 months to completion, "couldn't come at a better time" in view of rising unemployment in the construction industry, said Ald. A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of Victoria Labor Council.

Health Minister Eric Martin said the contractor has agreed to hire local tradesmen provided that competent and qualified men are available.

LONG AWAITED

Award of the contract ends numerous delays that triggered several rounds of criticism against both the hospital's board and the provincial government.

Originally, construction was slated to start in the summer of 1959 following a successful community fund drive that raised about $500,000 to meet the gap left by government grants.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Could you please tell me the period in which the Earl of Ellensburgh or Ellenmere was Viceroy of India? E.A.B.

A. Edward Law, 2nd Baron Ellenborough, was appointed by the court of directors of the East India Company to succeed Lord Auckland as governor-general of India in 1841. The whole term of his office, which lasted until his recall by the directors of the company in 1844 due to his independent policy, was taken up by the rising of the amirs of Sind, culminating in the annexation of that territory through the military campaigns of Sir Charles Napier. On his return to England, Ellenborough was created an earl. His suggestions for governmental reform of India, abolishing the executive power of the East India Company in that country, were later adopted by Lord Stanley in the 1858 "constitution."

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Margaret in Victoria

Victorians Hail Birth

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

British Columbians joined today with millions in Canada and the Commonwealth in heartfelt good wishes to Princess Margaret and her husband.

All who remember the Princess' visit here during the Centennial year of 1958 responded warmly to the birth of her first son.

"Jolly good luck to her," said a city bus driver. "She's a darn nice girl."

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes crystallized these thoughts in a cable addressed to the Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon:

"All in British Columbia are delighted to hear of the birth of your son. May I extend hearty congratulations and best wishes to you and Viscount Snowdon."

Those of us who met the Princess at a private press reception in the Empress Hotel felt a personal thrill when the news flashed across the wires.

PLEASANT MEMORY

We recalled the sunny spontaneous greeting she had for each of us, and one particular incident glowed in our memories.

That was when Margaret took a cigarette from her handbag and a dozen lighters leapt to her service. The princess declined them all and waited while a Times reporter struggled with a little box of book matches.

He still keeps that match as a souvenir and another reporter is remembered for the classic remark:

"I feel I'd like to take her away from it all!"

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black cabled this message:

"The people of the government of British Columbia extend to you and Viscount Snowdon their heartiest congratulations on the birth of your first son."

Archbishop Harold Sexton wired congratulations on behalf of Anglicans throughout the province.

"All of us who had the privilege of knowing Princess Margaret will wish her well on this happy occasion," he said.

At the City Hall, Mayor Percy Scurrah said:

"On behalf of the citizens of Victoria I extend heartfelt congratulations to the Princess and her husband."

REAL CLIMAX

The Princess' arrival here on July 12, 1958, was the climax to a year of celebration marking British Columbia's 100th birthday.

Much had been heard about her—much had been written about her. And in person the Princess proved every bit as charming and vivacious as we had been led to expect.

She worshipped with 1,500 Victorians at Christ Church Cathedral, uttering the age-old responses from memory and listening with an air of

Mother, Baby Doing Well

LONDON (CP)—Princess Margaret gave birth to a son today and her husband said she was thrilled and delighted.

First to see the baby boy—after the doctors and nurses—was the father, the Earl of Snowdon, the former society photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones.

Coming from the royal maternity suite in Clarence House, he exclaimed to a member of the household:

"The princess and I are absolutely thrilled and delighted."

His son—fifth in line to the British throne — was born Viscount Linley.

The infant's weight was announced as six pounds, four ounces.

An official announcement said "mother and son are doing well."

"It's a sweet baby," said a member of the household.

The child was born in the room in Clarence House that Princess Margaret once used as a bedroom. She lived at the house, home of the Queen Mother, until her marriage in May, 1960. Both she and her husband are 31.

Crowds cheered outside Clarence House. The Scots Guards' bagpipe band marched past filling the air with highland music.

The news of the birth was relayed quickly to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip. Congratulations began pouring in.

Philip commented at Leeds in north England: "It's a great relief all 'round."

Lord Evans, 58, one of five medical men who attended the princess, told the father "It's a boy."

"Can I see her?" asked the husband, meaning Margaret.

"I think so," replied the doctor.

Happy Father Showers Red Roses

Tony went first to see Margaret. And then he tip-toed in to see his son.

He hurried to see the Queen Mother. With her, he revisited his wife and son.

Before the baby's birth—10.45 a.m. (2.45 PST)—Tony sent Margaret an armload of red roses. He repeated the order after the birth.

Bursting with the news, the Queen Mother got on the telephone to Buckingham Palace. To the Queen, she said:

"It's a boy, they're both doing well."

Within three hours the Queen was at Clarence House. The room in which the boy was born was the same in which Elizabeth gave birth to Princess Anne 11 years ago.

The news was flashed to the far corners of the world. It even went out to jet airliners in flight.

Trans World Airlines and British Overseas Airways Corporation spokesmen said their pilots in flight—everywhere—were asked to pass on the news.

The baby is known as Viscount Linley of Nymans, a town in the southern English county of Sussex.

The young lord was placed by nurse Anne Thomson in a wicker crib made in Dublin and sent by his paternal grandmother, the Countess of Rosse. She and the princess had guessed right. Hoping for a boy, they picked blue ribbons to trim the crib.

BONNER SAYS:

Power Suit Not Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner says the government of British Columbia has not rejected B.C. Power Corporation's petition to sue the government over the price paid for the B.C. Electric Company.

"The fiat is under careful scrutiny and I will soon be in a position to make a report to the Executive Council," the attorney-general told a meeting of students at the University of British Columbia, on Thursday.

He said any decision will not be made known until after Premier Bennett returns from a two-week vacation.

The premier had indicated in a speech in the Okanagan a month ago that the fiat would not be granted.

But the attorney-general told the students that "there has been no decision or formal action yet on the part of the cabinet".

He asserted that the premier had merely said he considered the price paid a fair one.

B.C. Power is asking permission to seek a court award of $225,000,000 for the B.C. Electric. The corporation, which held all BCE's common shares, was paid just under $111,000,000 by the government when it expropriated BCE on August 1.

Mr. Bonner also defended the $38 which the government has offered for B.C. Power shares as a fair one — "the market

WHY RUSSIA IGNORES FALLOUT DANGER?

Anti-Radiation Drug Suspected

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Charles B. Limbrick, retired RCAF group captain and missile and radar expert, said today he believes the Soviet Union has perfected an anti-radiation drug which has been mass-administered to the Russian people.

He said that in such circumstances Russia can detonate many more nuclear bombs, lure the West into testing its own nuclear weapons and "can wait a long while for results."

Group Capt. Limbrick, former director of radio warfare in the RCAF, said in an interview that Western nations for some years h[illegible] known that Russia was "[illegible] track of a chemical pill [illegible]ubstance to offset most o[illegible] radiation sickness effects."

"In my opinion," he added, "Russia now has a medical counter to radiation."

"Obviously, Russia is not worried about contamination," Group Capt. Limbrick said. It had set off at least 30 nuclear bombs in the current series of tests.

Group Capt. Limbrick said he was told in Europe last year that the U.S.S.R. was "close to success" in its search for an antidote for radiation poisoning. He did not identify his informant but indicated his source was a Western official closely associated with biological research.

He said it was known five years ago that Russia was a "good deal" ahead of the West in the biological aspects of radiation sickness.

"Russia will not only let off many fallout-producing bombs, some very large, but also by the same action induce the United States, United Kingdom and France also to release fallout.

"The Russians can wait a long while for results."

Biologists at the atomic centre at Chalk River, Ont., more than two years ago, launched experiments with a drug which may help to protect man against atomic radiation.

Research with rats indicated that the drug — parathormone —provides protection when it is injected before exposure to radioactivity and to a lesser degree after irradiation.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission is investigating the possibility of giving people anti-strontium pills in the event of a nuclear attack.

Imperial to Buy B.C. Crude for Ioco Plant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Imperial Oil today became the first company to announce it will buy British Columbia crude from a pipeline that is being built from the Peace River.

The company said it will purchase 7,000 barrels daily from the $31,500,000 line that will extend from Taylor Flats, B.C., in the Peace River district to the Kamloops area where it will join the Trans-Mountain pipeline from Alberta.

The line is being built by Western Pacific Crude and Products Company which was formed by Westcoast Transmission Company.

Imperial now takes the bulk of its crude from the Trans-Mountain line and imports some from California. The Western Products line, 505 miles long, is expected to be completed in December.

Imperial said the company and its partners now are drilling 40 development wells in the Boundary Lake field northeast of Dawson Creek. Companies operating in the Peace were expected to bring production up to 240,000 barrels a day by early next year.

heralded the birth of Margaret's son. Such salutes are reserved for children of the sovereign.

As a matter of courtesy Margaret's private secretary gave news of the birth to Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Home Secretary R. A. Butler and Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is spiritual head of the Church of England.

Although no formal pomp and ceremony accompanied the birth, the huge crowd outside Clarence House captured the spirit of most Britons—mixed relief and joy—when they let go with a wild cheer at news of the birth.

The day had started beautifully, with a Mediterranean blue sky, but began to cloud over about the time of the birth.

Margaret's boy is fifth in line of succession to the throne, behind Prince Charles, 13; Prince Andrew, who will be two in February; Princess Anne, 11, and Princess Margaret.

It was officially announced May 25 that Margaret was expecting.

Thousands of persons throughout the world sent messages of congratulation. And then former Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, declared there would be "great rejoicing throughout the country."

When Armstrong-Jones was made an earl in October, it was stated that the princess would retain her royal title and be known as "The Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon."

wistful gravity to the sermon by Dean Brian Whitlow.

She reviewed 32 Canadian, British and American ships at Royal Roads; charmed hundreds of people at a garden party at Government House; inspected the Veterans' Hospital — and made a sunny informal tour of Vancouver Island.

At Nanaimo 5,000 cheered as the Princess made the first cut in the city's six-ton centennial birthday cake. Two thousand children greeted her at an Indian potlach at Courtenay, and 100 members of a dozen Indian bands, from Alert Bay to Capilano on Vancouver's North Shore performed ancient dances of joy and welcome.

Premier Bennett presented the Princess with an island off Swartz Bay now known as Princess Margaret Island.

Her visit here was marked by brilliant sunshine and a merry round of pageantry and when she left the unanimous unspoken farewell was:

"Come again when you can."

CANADIANS 'DELIGHTED' DIEF WIRES PRINCESS

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker today hailed the birth of a son to Princess Margaret as "a great event."

He said he had cabled Canada's congratulations to the Princess.

The message read: "All Canadians are delighted at the glad news of the birth of your son. I send to Your Royal Highness and to the Earl of Snowdon warmest congratulations on behalf of the government and people of Canada and the respectful good wishes of my wife and me."

Cough Syrup Will Give Fallout Aid

LONDON (Reuters) — A British thyroid specialist today claimed that cough mixture will help protect people from radioactive iodine 131—a product of nuclear tests.

Phyllis George, consultant surgeon at the Royal Free Hospital here, told reporters: "A tablespoonful three times a day for five days will give you protection from iodine 131 for three months.

"The cough mixture must contain potassium iodide, of course, and the best way to protect people properly would be to give them potassium tablets before any fallout arrived."

Miss George, specialist in the hospital's thyroid clinic, made her claim at a time when government experts are working on plans to limit the possible dangers of iodine 131 when fallout from Russia's latest tests reaches Britain.

No Urgency

value on an open exchange — what a willing buyer and a willing seller would arrive at".

This was a precedent often followed, he said, particularly in Great Britain, where it was upheld by the House of Lords in the 1940's.

"Our basis was an application of a principle that will stand the test of time," he said.

Questioners tried to pin down the attorney-general on a statement he made in 1960 that the take-over of BCE would be "an irresponsible act".

"Taking it over simply for the sake of taking it over would be irresponsible," he said. "But today we have a different set of circumstances. Under the present set-up we stood to lose about $12,000,00 a year to the federal government in taxes."

LOOTING BROKE OUT in the business district of devastated Belize, British Honduras, after Hurricane Hattie passed, leaving 15,000 homeless and 75 per cent of all buildings destroyed or damaged. Soldiers were brought in from Jamaica to maintain order.

Ruined Capital To Move Inland

BELIZE (AP)—Twice destroyed by hurricanes in 30 years, this capital of British Honduras will be moved inland 44 miles from the exposed Caribbean coast to higher ground.

The government announcement came as the known death toll from hurricane Hattie rose to 151, and many more bodies were feared buried in the mud and wreckage left by the storm Tuesday.

The rising Belize River threatened floods in the city of 30,000, which bore the brunt of the 200-mile-an-hour winds and tidal waves that crashed in from the Caribbean.

Belize counted 62 dead. An estimated 75 per cent of the buildings in the capital were destroyed or damaged. The property devastation was greater than the 1931 hurricane that levelled the city and killed more than 2,000 persons.

There were 38 dead reported in Stann Creek, one at Gale's Point, 29 on Turneffe and 14 on Cay Caulker. The latter two are small islands off the coast.

Five persons were reported killed in neighboring Guatemala and two in Honduras.

British troops were flown from Jamaica to help guard against looting as the clearing of the debris went slowly, mostly by hand.

"When we are able to remove the debris from the streets, I fear many more bodies will be found," said Prime Minister George Price. "We are waiting for heavy equipment."

Raymond Yates, a waiter at the Fort George Hotel, told of the horror on hurricane night.

"I swam nine blocks right through the streets," he said. "On the way I found two bodies. I put them on a high place, where it was dry, and continued to swim. I came across a woman with two children. I helped the mother to safety, and swam the children to a dry place."

Evacuation of the thousands of homeless moved slowly. A shortage of gasoline contributed to transport difficulties. Special food dispensaries gave out rice to the destitute.

Relief supplies continued to pour in from abroad.

CRIPPLE KILLS WIFE AFTER BEING BEATEN

BOSTON (UPI)—A multiple sclerosis victim told police he shot and killed his wife Thursday night because she beat him while he was helpless in a wheelchair.

William Seward, 28, partially blind and crippled told police he shot his wife Natalie, 29, in the back of the head with a .22 calibre rifle.

Seward told police his wife had a bad temper and beat him and her 5-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

Ex-Mayor Considers Running in December

Ex-mayor Claude Harrison Thursday announced he is considering running for the top civic post next month.

He was defeated by Mayor Percy Scurrah in 1955 after serving four years.

"I have been asked by several to run and I have been thinking it over," Mr. Harrison said. "I think something has got to be done for Victoria. It seems to me we are not progressing the way we should."

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Det. Sgt. Donald Macdonald, chief of the Vancouver police gambling squad, was fired Thursday after a secret trial.

Macdonald, on the police force for 26 years, announced his own dismissal. Police Chief George Archer, who fired him, and Deputy Chief Gordon Ambrose, who prosecuted Macdonald at the trial, declined to comment on grounds the matter was a "domestic one."

The firing came after a day-and-a-half of secret hearings on eight charges of breaking the police disciplinary code.

GOLD STRIPE
CANADIAN RYE WHISKY

Even melting ice cubes can't dilute the true taste of Adams Gold Stripe. It keeps its flavour to the very bottom of the glass —the mark of a great whisky.

Next time you buy, try mellow custom-blended Gold Stripe, in the convenient 12 and 25 ounce flask bottles.
